U. S. Chief for Europe's Defense Likely; Installment Credit Curbs Announced

Rules Listed Soon After Bill Is Signed By Truman

Auto Down Payments Of at Least a Third Required, Effective On September 18

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday signed the economic controls law and within an hour the Federal Reserve Board acted to re-impose regulations on installment buying.

The new regulations, similar to those in effect during and after the war, become operative on September 18, a week from Monday.

They call for:

Down payments of at least one-third, and maximum maturities of 21 months for automobiles.

Down payments of at least 15 percent, and maximum maturities of 18 months for appliances: refrigerators, food freezers, radio or television sets, phonographs, cooking stoves, ranges, dishwashers, ironers, washing machines, clothes driers, sewing machines, suction cleaners, air conditioners and dehumidifiers.

Down payments of at least 10 percent, and 18 months maximum maturity for furniture and rugs.

Down payments of at least 10 percent, and 30 months maximum maturity for home repairs, alterations or improvements.

Law Empowers Board

The Federal Reserve Board was able to act at once in imposing the new "Regulation W," since the law delegates authority for this directly to the agency.

The other powers in the new law, however, run directly to the President. Therefore, he must delegate them to other agencies of his choosing. He is expected to do this in an executive order to be issued today.

Tonight, at 10:30 p. m., he will broadcast to the Nation an explanation and summary of his plans for homefront mobilization under the new law.

The principal powers it grants which he is expected to apply at once or in a few weeks include:

Authority to allocate scarce materials and to give priority to defense contracts.

Power to finance, directly or through guarantee of loans, enlargement of defense plant capacity.

Authority to control inventories and discourage hoarding.

Power to curb the extension of

More Men Asked To Guard Truman Due to Hours Cut

By The Associated Press

The Secret Service asked Congress yesterday for funds to hire 23 additional men to help guard President Truman.

Secret Service officials were reported to have told the Senate Appropriations Committee that there has been a recent increase in "crank" letters addressed to the President.

While these are not taken too seriously in most cases, the Secret Service wants more men to trace down their authors.

Later, in a formal request to the committee for $55,000 extra to hire the additional agents, Budget Director F. J. Lawton said they are needed largely because the Secret Service hours have been cut from 48 to 40 a week.

Police Plan New Unit for Juvenile Work

Creation of Special Squad Designed to Meet Crime Increase

By Alfred Lewis and Charles E. Davis, Jr.
Post Reporters

Plans for expansion of the Police Juvenile Bureau into a specialized squad working under the Detective Bureau were announced yesterday by Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police.

Acting to meet the rising tide of juvenile crime, Barrett said these steps will be taken:

1. Effective immediately, the Juvenile Bureau becomes the juvenile squad and is transferred from the jurisdiction of administrative headquarters to that of the detective bureau.

2. As soon as possible, probably at the end of the month, the squad will be enlarged by 15 or 20 men.

The squad, headed by Lieut. John F. Ryan, consisted of 12 men yesterday after the addition of two new privates. One of the 12 is a civilian clerk.

Announcement of plans for a more vital police juvenile squad followed by only one day the disclosure by Juvenile Court Judge Edith H. Cockrill that the number of juvenile delinquency cases in Juvenile Court increased by 10.3 percent during the fiscal year of 1950.

A report from Barrett to the District Commissioners also made public Thursday, disclosed that 24.6 percent of all serious felonies in Washington during the 1950 fiscal year were committed by juveniles.

In announcing his plans for the juvenile squad at a press conference yesterday, Barrett declared it would increase police efficiency in the handling of juvenile cases and, strangely, increase the number of juvenile cases.

Why will there be more juvenile cases with a more efficient juvenile squad in operation? This is the way Barrett explained it:

Policemen in the precincts have sometimes tended to overlook ju-

12 Still in Trap

116 Miners Are Rescued From Cave-In

NEW CUMNOCK, Scotland, Saturday, Sept. 9 (U.P.).—Rescue workers tunneled through 24 feet of rock and coal today to reach 116 miners trapped underground for more than 24 hours and began leading them to safety after feeding them beer and sandwiches.

Twelve other miners still were in perilous position. The 12 were trapped in a separate part of the mine from that to which rescuers tunneled from a nearby, unused mine shaft.

A National Coal Board official said that 116 of the 128 trapped men were now known safe but that the remaining 12 still were buried under 200 feet of mud, coal and rock. The miners were trapped when mud, loosed by heavy rains, slid into the mine opening.

By 2 a. m. (9 p. m. EDT) none of the trapped miners had been able to climb the steep grade to the fresh air because of their weakened condition.

It took rescuers at least half an hour to climb down through the old workings to reach the entrance to the 24-foot-long hole leading to the trapped men.

Point Four Held By Truman Reply To Red Charges

President Truman said yesterday the "Point Four" program of aid for underdeveloped areas will provide a way "to translate our words of friendship into deeds."

He also said in a statement that it will be one of the main ways of showing "the complete falsity" of Communist propaganda charges that the free nations can't provide a decent living standard for millions of people in underdeveloped regions.

Mr. Truman issued the statement in formally naming Secretary of State Acheson to carry out the program.

Congress has appropriated $34,500,000 for the first year's operations of the program.

Marine League Urges Ouster Of Johnson

Move Seen as Rebuke To Truman Following Earlier 'Forgiveness'

The national convention of the Marine Corps League, which booed President Truman's name on Wednesday and cheered him in person on Thursday, yesterday gave him a sharp rebuke.

With but two dissenting votes, the convention delegates meeting at the Statler, rushed through a resolution denouncing the "blundering" of the Defense Department and demanding the ouster of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson.

The resolution blamed the "short-sighted, inefficient, and dictatorial policies" of Secretary Johnson for inability of our armed forces to "protect our interests—even against the fourth-rate Communist satellite state of North Korea."

The leadership of the league, made up of ex-Marines, moved the condemnation resolution through so quickly that there was no floor discussion on it, even though President Truman himself had in effect urged the delegates the day before not to join in the "not only unfair, but unjust" attacks on members of his Cabinet.

Two of the delegates vocifer-

Truman Wins Labor at 'Love Feast'

AFL, CIO Leaders Receive President Warmly at Dinner; Pledge Union Aid

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

President Truman last night broke bread with the leaders of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, and without a word of politics, solidified labor's support for the Fair Deal in the upcoming November election.

The political unity of the two rival labor organizations, and their affection for Mr. Truman, was eptomized at the end of the two-hour love feast when the President emerged from the Statler banquet room locked arm and arm with Joe Keenan and Jack Kroll, the political chiefs of the AFL and CIO.

President Pleases Diners

The labor leaders participating in the session agreed when it was over that the President, by his friendly presence, had not only given labor a boost toward political unity, but to ultimate organic unity as well.

It was the first time since 1935, when the CIO broke away from the AFL, that so many top labor chieftains — many of whom have been bitter foes since that time—sat down together in so fraternal a manner. "Strictly love and kisses," enthused an AFL official. "Never has there been so much goodwill between the two organizations," beamed a CIO officer.

Mr. Truman spoke for five or seven minutes. He eschewed politics. He told the union officials—as he has told other groups of late—of his problems in pressing the Korean war and fighting for peace. He asked for labor's help to this end. AFL President Bill Green and CIO President Phil Murray said that labor would give the President full support to achieve his aim of winning the war — and peace.

Green Quips

AFL President Green quipped that the participants at the dinner included many presidents of international unions who had made mistakes themselves. Therefore, Green said, the union leaders were indeed happy to have as their guest a President who had made a mistake and had had the courage to admit. Green referred, of course, to Mr. Truman's remark earlier in the week that the Marines had as many propagandists as Stalin, a comment for which he made public apology.

The dinner session was attended by approximately 50 AFL and CIO officials. There were two other guests besides the President, William Boyle chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Maurice Tobin Secretary of Labor.

Danger of Perimeter Being Smashed Over, Gen. Walker Holds; Rain Bars Air Help

BULLETIN

TOKYO (Saturday), Sept. 9 (AP).—A daring landing by South Korean Marines on an island off the west coast, 70 miles south of the Reds' capital of Pyongyang, was disclosed today by the South Keorean navy.

In the southwest sector, where the Reds stand closest to their most coveted goal, the lifeline port of Pusan, they recaptured Battle Mountain today from U. S. Twenty-fifth Division troops 35 miles west of Pusan.

Civilians were being evacuated from Masan, guardian city 27 air miles west of Pusan, as the fighting swelled in fury.

By Relman Morin

TOKYO (Saturday), Sept. 9 (AP).—The North Korean Reds struck anew at Taegu from two directions today but the commander of the United States Eighth Army said the danger of the battle perimeter being smashed had ended.

Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker said the greatest peril was passed September 3—"my own worst day"—when the Reds made big gains toward Masan and Yongsan in the southwest sector. Counterattacks which relieved that situation and firmly established the Naktong River line ended the menace, the general added.

Today United States First Cavalry Division troops "contained" a Communist attack eight miles northwest of Taegu, the midday communique of the Eighth Army reported.

But to the northeast of Taegu, where interest is focused on two vital highway junctions — Yongchon and Kyongju—the Reds were probing and infiltrating while United Nations forces strove to repair gaps in the line.

Reds Are Near Yongchon

The communique said that the Reds have fought to "within a few miles" of Yongchon, 20 miles northeast of Taegu. Yongchon, whose loss would make Taegu untenable, changed hands twice Thursday night and Friday.

Slipping through gaps made by a breakthrough last Monday, the Reds infiltrated across the supply highway leading to Taegu from the east. They crossed between Yongchon and Kyongju, the latter 35 miles east of Taegu.

"Both towns and the connecting road are still in friendly hands," the communique said.

The rains continued today. The unfavorable weather again threatened to cut down the effectiveness of the United Nations air arm and to cover Red reinforcements movements known to be taking place at both ends of the battle front.

Recapping events of the last 10 days, General Walker told Associated Press Correspondent Jack MacBeth that the Communist offensive launched September 1 was the biggest attack of the war.

Peril Passed, He Says

He said the peril passed when the Reds failed to hold Yongsan and to capture Masan.

Malik Fails To Block U. N. Annual Report

Sought to Declare Korea War Decision As Illegally Recorded

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 8 (AP)—Russia lost today a move to eliminate the Korean war from the Security Council's annual report to the United Nations General Assembly.

But she may try to make the demand stick by invoking the veto next week to kill the whole report.

Soviet Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik contended at a closed Council meeting that adoption of the report is a substantive matter and, thus, subject to the veto. The other Council members disagreed.

The actual proposal which Russia submitted at today's closed-door session was to eliminate all sections of the report covering decisions between January 13, when the Soviet boycott began, and July 15. The annual report normally runs from mid-July to the next mid-July.

Malik said all actions of the Council during the period of the Soviet boycott were illegal and hence have no place in the report. The Council ordered United Nations intervention in Korea on June 27—during the Russian boycott. Malik returned to the Council August 1, ending the Soviet walkout.

The vote was 10 to 1, with Malik alone supporting the Soviet proposal. The Council holds another closed session next Tuesday to seek final approval of the report.

The Soviet delegate did not say definitely that he will use the veto. He could abstain. But this looked unlikely. He had already told an earlier meeting that he could not vote for any report covering the period when Russia was absent.

Malik won the Council's consent yesterday to discuss Russia's request that a Red Chinese representative sit in during the debate on the Peiping government's accusations against the United States. Red China has charged the United States with aggression against Formosa and bombing of an air strip in Manchuria. The Soviet request will be taken up Monday.

The United States abstained yesterday in the vote to put the question on Monday's agenda and may abstain again when the question of seating the Chinese representative is put to a vote. In view of the present American policy on China, a United States vote against seating the Communists might be viewed as a direct affront. If the American delegation voted to seat them the action might look like softening of the United States policy.

More Yank Divisions on Continent Are Favored

'Ike' and Bradley Discussed as Leader; German Units Urged In Combined Force

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

One of America's foremost military leaders is likely to be designated soon as the chief of staff of combined North Atlantic forces for the defense of western Europe.

After more than a year's debate, Administration leaders have agreed at last, subject only to President Truman's final approval, to provide such a leader if the North Atlantic treaty partners want him.

First of all the names mentioned as the possible choice was that of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Secretaries Acheson and Johnson have also recommended to the President the stationing of between five and ten additional American divisions on the continent of Europe as soon as they can be recruited, equipped and trained. Two conditions to this proposal are (1) that the continental Europeans make a matching effort to get new forces into the field, and (2) that Britain and Canada put more forces on the continent as part of the common North Atlantic defense.

May Include German Units

In addition, there is widespread and growing agreement within the Administration that western German units should be incorporated into such a combined army, up to division strength and with their own officers. Under this plan the United States and other North Atlantic treaty nations would supply the planes, guns and other weapons for these German units.

If the President approves the recommendations for the American chief of staff and the new divisions in Europe, Acheson will take the decisions to New York next week for discussion, approval and action by his European colleagues. And he will also seek their views on whether, and how, German forces should be brought into the combined force.

The debate within the Administration over European defense came to a head on August 26, at the same White House meeting at which the President read Gen. Douglas MacArthur's famous statement on Formosa and ordered it withdrawn.

At this meeting the President asked Acheson and Johnson to give

Loan to Iran Soon Considered Likely; Report Is Awaited

The United States is planning to grant a substantial loan soon to Iran, uneasy neighbor of Soviet Russia.

Administration officials forecast yesterday that this move to strengthen the economy of the Middle East land—already receiving U. S. arms—may come next month. Ambassador Henry F. Grady is expected to submit by then detailed recommendations from a special advisory mission now nearing the end of a three-month survey on the scene.

What is planned is an Export-Import Bank loan to carry out careful blueprints for spending on projects designed to be of lasting benefit to the 17,000,000 Iranians. The nine-member mission of economic experts, headed by Leslie Wheeler, diplomat and economist, was instructed to waste no time. Responsible officials said the administration remains greatly concerned over the economic situation in Iran and is prepared to act promptly when final recommendations have been put into shape.

Other People 'Would Scream'

Truman Cites Voteless D.C. As He Gets Absentee Ballot

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman said yesterday that if Americans generally were in the position of those in the District of Columbia, "they would be screaming their heads off" because they have no chance to vote.

Mr. Truman, who has long been for home rule for this voteless city, made the remark when he inaugurated the Absentee Voters Bureau of the Democratic National Committee, 1508 H st. nw. He filled out an application for an absentee ballot from his native Missouri, explaining afterward that it looked as if he wouldn't be able to go home and vote in November.

"It is the duty of every citizen to exercise his right to vote," the Chief Executive said in a brief talk. "Since I was 21 years old, I have never missed that chance, except when I was away from the country in World War I. At that time, we did not allow soldiers to vote in Missouri. We do now . . .

"Out of ninety million people or more authorized to vote in the general elections of 1948, less than one-half of those people exercized that right.

"Now, if they had been in the position of the people of the District of Columbia, they would be screaming their heads off because they didn't have the chance to vote. Yet when they got the chance to vote, they didn't exercise that privilege."

Mr. Truman emphasized that the Absentee Voters Bureau, although operated by the Democratic National Committee, was set up to offer its services to all, Republicans as well as Democrats.

In the company of William M. Boyle, jr., chairman of the Democratic National Committee, the President walked through the headquarters to greet party workers and members of Congress. Among the latter was Representative Percy Priest of Tennessee, Democratic whip, who recently got a scolding from Mr. Truman for saying that Secretaries Acheson and Johnson ought to quit.

Earlier yesterday, at the White House, Mr. Truman met with representatives of the Council of Motion Pictures Organizations, Inc., who had called to pledge their cooperation with the Government.

Mr. Truman, talking to the group on the steps outside his office, urged the motion picture industry to counteract Communist "propaganda and fiction" with a hard-hitting "campaign of truth and fact." He praised Hollywood for its work in World War II, and called for "a repeat" now.

Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO, pledged the support of "our cameras and our screens to you, the United Nations and our Government until peace and freedom are secure."

Others in the delegation were actresses Myrna Loy and Brenda Marshall and actor William Holden.

Suicide Verdict Expected

Maryland U. Girl, 21, Found Shot Dead in Rockville Home

An attractive, 21-year-old University of Maryland junior was found dead, shot through the head, yesterday afternoon in a bedroom in her home at 218 Monroe st., Rockville, Md.

Police said Miss Janet Rice, psychology major at the University, was found in her brother John's bedroom with a wound in her head by her mother, Mrs. Anna F. Rice. A .22 caliber pistol lay near her right arm.

Mrs. Rice, a caseworker for Montgomery County Welfare Board, has been out of the house for a few hours and returned about 4 p. m. An hour earlier, Miss Rice had been helping her brother John clean the car so she could use it in commuting to college later this month.

Montgomery County police said Miss Rice had been emotionally upset and was reportedly under the care of a psychiatrist. She left no note, they reported.

The mother called Dr. Gordon S. Rosenberger of Rockville, who summoned police. Dr. E. G. Bauersfeld, acting county medical examiner, viewed the body and said he planned to issue a certificate of suicide later.

The body was removed to the Robert Pumphrey Funeral Home in Rockville.

Besides her mother and brother, Miss Rice is survived by an older brother who lives in California. Her father, John Rice, a Darnestown farmer, was killed in an automobile accident about 15 years ago.

More Marines, Greater Voice At Pentagon Sought in Bills

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Legislation to greatly expand the Marine Corps and give it greater voice in the Pentagon high command was presented to the Senate and House yesterday.

Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois, and Representative Mike Mansfield of Montana, both stanch Administration supporters—and also ex-Marines—announced jointly they will introduce bills to increase the Leathernecks to a minimum of 300,000 men.

Four full strength Marine divisions and four full air wings would be maintained under the bills, together with necessary supporting forces.

There also would be created an Assistant Secretary of the Navy for the Marine Corps and the Leatherneck commandant would be made a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, under the Douglas-Mansfield proposal.

Marine supporters have been urging for some time that Gen. Clifton B. Cates, USMC Commandant, be put on the Joint Chiefs. It was a congressional plea for presidential support of this proposal which produced the now famous letter from President Truman, lambasting the Marines for having a "propaganda machine almost equal to Stalin's" and declaring that the corps was Food Price Decline Continues in U. S.

Local and national retail food prices continued to decline slightly from a post-Korea high during the last two weeks of August, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday.

A seasonal decline in the prices of most fresh fruits and vegetables, plus a decline in hamburger and egg prices, more than offset price increases in most other foods, the bureau reported.

Nationally, retail food prices averaged one percent lower between August 15 and August 28 than for the first two weeks of August.

Locally, no percentage figure was available.

The figures are based on a special survey of prices for 25 foods in 13 big cities.

Largest price declines in Washington, the BLS survey showed, were for lettuce, 11.7 percent; oranges, 8.2 percent; and fresh tomatoes, 5.7 percent.

The price of hamburger declined 2.2 percent to an average 60 cents a pound, and the price of eggs fell 1.2 percent to an average of 65.8 cents a dozen.

The retail price of pork chops showed the greatest increase, 8.4 percent, to 92.6 cents a pound.

The price of bread and fresh delivered milk remained constant, the survey showed.

On Capitol Hill, Paul C. Smith, vice president of Swift and Co., meat packers, told a Senat Agricultural subcommittee that meat prices should drop this fall when supply increases seasonally.

Smith said President Truman should avoid imposing price controls because they would lead only to a "deplorable black market."

Subcommittee Chairman Senator Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa) charged that Smith's company had boosted prices "very materially during the few weeks after Korea."

Smith said the housewife, not the packer, sets prices.

Economic Controls Bill Signed

credit for new home and commercial construction.

The major additional authority in the new law permits the President to invoke wage and price ceilings, on a general or selective basis. He is expected to set up a new agency to prepare for this operation if the need comes.

For some months, however, no price or wage fixing is expected. On the other hand, there is a growing feeling among Administration economists that with anticipated enlargements of military appropriations, general controls will be needed—and applied—by mid-1951.

The Federal Reserve Board regulations apply to installment credits on automobiles up to $5000 and to other installment credits of $2500 or less. Loans for installment buying of less than $100 are exempted from the minimum down payment requirements. But if they are to be used for buying any of the listed articles, the maximum maturity rule applies.

Stiffer Terms Possible

In announcing the new regulation, the Board made a point of stressing the fact that the limitations prescribed are merely the "initial" ones. If they do not succeed in curbing the enormous recent expansion of installment credit, stiffer provisions can be invoked.

Thus, the down payments can be made larger, the maturity periods shorter, and other articles —small household goods, clothing, hardware or anything, in fact, bought on time or on charge accounts—can be included.

The present regulation exempts charge accounts and single payment loans.

During the war, Regulation W was considerably stricter than the new one. But the new one, in turn, is much stricter than prevailing market practices.

For example, the current practice in selling autos follows much looser terms. Some new ones are sold for as little as 20 percent down and three years to pay, and second-hand jobs for only a token down payment.

The Board reported that appliance and furniture sales are often made with only 10 percent, or even no down payment, and two years or more as maturity.

The new regulation applies according to the purpose of the loan, not the source. Banks, credit unions, loan companies, private individuals and retail dealers must determine from the borrower the use to which he will put the money. If it is for the buying of one of the listed articles, the terms must be abided by.

Installment loans for the purpose of buying of unlisted articles must be repaid in 18 months, unless they are for educational, medical, dental, hospital or funeral expenses.

No borrower can buy a listed article under the terms prescribed, and at the same time get a side loan to help him out, and thus, in effect, negate the terms of the regulation.

All leaders are automatically given a 60-day license to conduct their business. But before that period expires, they must obtain a permanent license from a Federal Reserve Bank or branch. If the lender violates the regulation, his license can be revoked, and he will thus be put out of business.

U. S. Estimates Cotton Crop As One of Smallest in 60 Years

By The Associated Press

One of the smallest cotton crops in 60 years was forecast yesterday as the Government clamped strict controls on the export of raw cotton to allow a study of defense needs.

The Agriculture Department forecast this year's crop at 9,882,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight.

This estimate is 426,000 bales less than the 10,308,000 bales forecast a month ago. It compares with 16,128,000 grown last year and with a ten year (1939-48) average of 11,599,000 bales.

Production is down from last year largely because of the effects of a Government control program designed to prevent the accumulation of a burdensome surplus. But the Government had not sought such a drop. Some farmers did not plant all they were entitled to under the program.

Nevertheless, reserves from past crops assure ample supplies of most grades and staple lengths until the 1951 crop is harvested.

In addition, the Government yesterday restored strict controls on exports of cotton.

In a report accompanying the crop forecast, the Census Bureau said 863,633 bales of 1950-crop cotton had been ginned prior to September 1 compared with 1,247,576 bales to the same date last year and 1,444,355 two years ago.

The department estimated the yield per acre at 257.4 pounds compared with 284 last year and 261.3 for the 10-year average.

Higher Prices Forecast For Cotton Goods

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (AP).—Higher prices for cotton goods were foreshadowed today as major mills withdrew their lines from sale to await stabilizing of raw cotton prices.

The withdrawals were mostly on items for delivery in the first quarter of 1951, and a majority of mills reported they had practically sold out the production for the remainder of this year.

A new Government cotton corp forecast of well under 10,000,000 bales sent futures soaring at one time during the day to beyond 41 cents a pound—highest in 30 years.

GE Talks Show No Progress

By The Associated Press

Federal mediation of the General Electric strike dispute was recessed last night until Tuesday in a flurry of dispute and with no visible progress toward settlement.

James B. Carey, chairman of the CIO International Electrical Workers Union (IUE), told reporters he had "accepted" the company's offer as published in full-page advertisements in several cities this week.

It developed, however, that the acceptance applied to the company's estimate that its wage offer and its increased pension and insurance programs are "obviously worth 25 to 43.5 cents an hour."

Carey said the union would accept the midpoint of those figures, or 34¼ cents, as the basis for "an agreement in principle" and would negotiate how the money would be divided up in various benefits to workers. If there was disagreement, he said, a "Government-appointed commission of public spirited citizens" might settle the issue.

The GE negotiators rejected the idea and Carey offered to take the 25-cent "package" on the same basis. Again the company refused, and Carey charged that the offer was a "phony."

But Lemuel Boulware, GE vice president heading the company delegation, replied that Carey was "trying to rig up a trick interpretation of the ad."

Federal Mediator Yates Haeffner said the joint conferences were recessed until Tuesday at 10:30 (EDT) in the Maqflower Hotel here.

July Incomes Of Individuals Rise Further

The flow of income to individuals in this country speeded up to a 219 billion dollar a year rate in July, compared with $217,100,000,000 in June, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

More consumer buying power was thus pumped into the economy during July than in any previous month this year except last March. In that month GI insurance refunds temporarily pushed the annual rate to $219,300,000,000.

The figures exclude income of corporations, but count all receipts of individuals: wages and salaries, net incomes of owners of farms and unincorporated business, net rent receipts of landlords, pension and relief checks, etc.

Indications are that new records will be set when the figures for August and September become available, reflecting the impact of the Korean war and related developments.

The department said the June-to-July rise came largely from increased receipts of farms and business owners, which accounted for 45 billion dollars of the July annual rate total. Retail business owners benefited from the war-caused July buying rush, farm owners from higher prices for their products.

Wage and salary receipts, biggest single part of individual income, made only a slight further gain in July after marked advances the preceding month.

"Total wage and salary disbursements in July were at an annual rate of $143,300,000,000," the department said. "The effect of the Korean conflict has not as yet been reflected in the employment and wage totals."

100-Mi. Winds Whip Up Ocean Off Bermuda

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 8 (U.P.).—An Atlantic hurricane with 100-mile-an-hour winds showed no tendency to move tonight and whipped up the ocean 200 miles southwest of Bermuda.

The tropical storm had 160-mile-an-hour winds a week ago. The Miami Weather Bureau said it had winds of "not more than 100 miles an hour" and had remained in the same spot for 36 hours.

However, the Weather Bureau warned that "this is still a large and severe storm, and shipping should exercise caution."

The hurricane hit the British island of Antigua last Friday night with its 160-mile-an-hour winds, causing one million dollars damages. It roared across the Atlantic, kicking up waves 100 feet high, before sagging to a standstill 200 miles southeast of Bermuda or 850 miles east of the Jacksonville, Fla.-Brunswick, Ga., area.

Drive for Excess Profits Tax Begun in House But Doughton Insists It Won't Go Into Bill

House advocates of an excess profits tax opened their fight yesterday by blocking a move to send the $4,508,000,000 "Korean War" tax bill to a House-Senate conference.

Warning that such tactics might kill the tax bill, Ways and Means Chairman Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.) announced he will seek a green light for the bill from the House Rules committee early next week.

"There is no chance to get an excess tax in this bill until judgment day," said Doughton. "This is just delaying the bill. They might fool around here and get no tax bill at all."

Further action on the Senate-passed measure was put over at least until next week when Representative Herman P. Eberharter (R., Pa.) objected to a request by Doughton for unanimous consent to send the bill to conference.

Eberharter heads up a House movement to "instruct" the House conferees to write a profits levy into the emergency revenue measure passed last week by the Senate.

The Senate bill boosts the regular rates on individuals and corporations but by-passes immediate taxation of corporate excess profits by calling on the tax making committees of the next Congress to do the job.

Eberharter said he will try again to instruct the House conferees next week even if the House Rules committee reports a special procedure for sending the bill to conference. He said he thinks he knows a parliamentary way to get a roll call vote on his motion.

The Pennsylvania Democrat told reporters he is receiving letters from all over the country urging him to go on with the fight. Allied with Eberharter in the House move to tax excess profits are Representatives John Carroll (D., Colo.), Cecil R. King (D., Calif.) and Stephen M. Young (D., Ohio).

Eberharter's amendment would raise about six billion dollars additional by taxing profits in excess of average 1946-1949 earnings at a 95 percent rate, after a $10,000 exemption.

Doughton told reporters excess profits taxation should be handled in a separate bill "after we have had a chance to study how it should be applied."

During the Senate tax fight, Senate Finance Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.) similarly argued that a four-month study by congressional staff experts in cooperation with the Treasury is necessary to work out a "just" profits levy.

Reds Building Forces For Fresh Assaults

the lifeline port of Pusan, was entered by the Reds September 1 and lost the next day. The peril there was that the Reds might drive 11 miles eastward and cut the main north-south highway from Pusan to Taegu. Since then the United States Second Division and the First Marine Brigade have rolled the Reds back six miles to within two miles of the Naktong River.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Huth reported today that the Reds have rushed reinforcements across the river.

The Reds managed to infiltrate within three miles of Masan, while under orders to capture it by September 3, but were forced back in bitter fighting by the United States Twenty-fifth Division. Seizure of Masan would have opened the gate to Pusan, 27 air miles away.

Two Other Attacks Repelled

An Eighth Army briefing officer said the Second Division repelled a large-scale Red attack yesterday and another early today.

But the present point of peril remained on the north.

The Eighth Army communique said United Nations forces were "attempting to form new lines" in the Angang sector. Angang, 10 miles north of Kyongju, is where Red breakthrough forces last Tuesday swung west to Yongchon and south to near Kyongju.

One attempt failed. Yesterday, southwest of Angang, U. N. troops made unspecified advances, the communique reported, but last night the Reds forced them back 1000 yards.

For the moment the general attack of some 130,000 North Korean troops ringing the beachhead appeared to have faltered. But intelligence reports to General MacArthur's headquarters indicated the Reds were receiving reinforcements and were capable of renewing their offensive.

On the eastern front American and South Korean units made separate counterattacks southwest of Pohang, where the Reds had opened up a 5-mile gap in Allied lines earlier this week to cut the main supply route between Pusan and closely-threatened Taegu.

Mountainous terrain, boxed-in valleys and stormy weather proved greater obstacles than the North Koreans in holding the Allies to only small advances of a few hundred yards.

"We seem to have the Reds off balance for the moment," said an American staff officer in this sector, "but in two or three days it may be different. We could have a tough situation on our hands."

Another American counterattack was launched where the Reds have maneuvered on to high ground seven miles north of Taegu.

First Cavalry Division infantrymen, rain-drenched and weary after six days of battle to stem the Red drive, were forced to turn back after reaching half way to the top of an important Red-dominated hill position. The cavalrymen withdrew under strong enemy resistance.

Expected air strikes to clear the mist-obscured hilltop failed to arrive because of the weather.

Only six planes were able to penetrate the storm-shrouded battlefront Friday for close support of ground troops. In contrast, more than 600 sorties of all types were flown the preceding day.

In other American counterattacks Friday, Second Division infantry repulsed two separate Communist assaults on the western front along the Naktong River, and the Twenty-fifth Division regained Battle Mountain in the southwest sector near Masan. It has changed hands nine times in two weeks.

However, a dispatch from the Masan front this morning said Korean Reds had recaptured the strategic mountain.

Ominous Red buildups were reported in progress both before the Masan front and in the north and northeast sectors, where the North Koreans now have 80,000 men aimed at breaking the northern wall..

The situation remained fluid at Yongchon, important highway point 20 miles east of Taegu. Ownership of the town appeared in doubt.

The North Korean morning communique of Friday, broadcast by Moscow, confirmed that units of the South Korean Capitol and Third Divisions, south of Angang and South of Pohang, "began fierce counterattacks." The Red radio claimed "a strong blow" had been dealt these forces.

Associated Press Correspondent Bill Ross reported from the northeastern front that American troops were sending out patrols to investigate information that 600 Reds west of Angang have been cut off and were desperate for food and ammunition.

The east coast airstrip six miles south of Pohang remained in American control although United States troops in that sector were cut off by Reds who occupy Pohang.

The 50,000 North Koreans who punched from the north and northwest at Taegu were definitely stalled, an Eighth Army spokesman said. Lack of supplies and men was presumed the cause.

Although weather was bad in southern Korea B-29s were able to soar north of the 38th parallel and bomb strategic targets.

REMASSING—Boxes show strength of stalled North Korean forces which may be rebuilding for new offensives along the Korean battle line. In northeast, Allied units made small gains in the Kyongju area. The situation at Yongchon was fluid. United States troops withdrew under enemy resistance after attacking Red positions seven miles north of Taegu. In the south, Yanks retook Battle Mountain west of Haman and repulsed enemy assaults in Yongsan simply the "Navy's police force" and would remain so.

The outourst resulting from the President's words brought an unprecedented but quick and full apology from Mr. Truman.

Senator Douglas made a stirring plea on the Senate floor for passage of his bill.

"We will guarantee," said the war-time Leatherneck officer, "That we will have more fighters for every 100,000 men, that we will operate at less cost and less overhead and that we will have higher casualties than any other branch of the services.

"It's on that basis that I plead with the Senate not to permit the planners of the Pentagon to strangle the Marine Corps."

In his letter of apology to General Cates, President Truman made it plain he still is opposed to giving the Corps full representation on the Joint Chiefs. The President declared that the Marines now are represented thereon by the Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Forrest P. Sherman. Presumably the White House and top Pentagon chiefs also would oppose expanding the Marines

U. S. Chief, More Yank Troops For Europe's Defense Likely him the answers to four questions: (1) Should the United States provide an American to head combined North Atlantic defense forces? (2) Should the United States commit additional divisions to Europe? (3) Should the United States go on rearming its European partners? and (4) Should the United States join in a North Atlantic Production Authority to manage the rearmament of all the treaty nations?

Defense, State Agree on Replies

The President asked for answers by September 1, but later moved the deadline to September 5. By the appointed date the answers reached the White House, and they were answers fully agreed to by the State Department and the Pentagon.

The first question, relating to the American commander, was yes, but with one qualification. Acheson and Johnson recommended that, since the combined army did not yet exist, the appointment should be that of a chief of staff to organize it. Later, when the army was in existence, it would be time to name an American supreme commander, either the same man or another to lead it in the field.

The answer to the second question, about American divisions for Europe, was yes, with the conditions already mentioned. The third, about American weapons for Europe, was yes, and so was the fourth, about the proposed new Production Authority.

The questions and answers showed clearly that the President was aroused by the defense emergency across the Atlantic, and that the State Department and Pentagon no longer disagreed about the steps that had to be taken to meet it. Administration leaders, both civilian and military, now insist that only the boldest and speediest action can avert the threat of a Soviet overrunning of western Europe.

One high official estimated yesterday that the Soviets now had 170 divisions in their own country, plus 27 divisions, 15 of them armored, in the Soviet zone of eastern Germany, plus substantial added strength in the armies of their eastern European satellites.

The recommendation to name an American chief of staff for Europe led at once to speculation about who he might be.

Gen. Eisenhower, the wartime supreme commander has always said he was at his country's call. Recently he underlined this in a letter tendering his services in any way they might be useful in the present emergency.

The Europeans have long wanted Eisenhower; they know him and like him, and they know his proven ability to weld the forces of many nationalities into a single war machine.

But other names are being mentioned, among them that of Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. There is also some talk of Gen. George C. Marshall, who visited the President at the White House this week and also had a long private talk at his Leesburg, Va., home with Secretary Acheson.

Europe Glad for American

There is no question that the European ministers in New York next week would be glad to have an American chief of staff, especially one of the Eisenhower, Bradley or Marshall caliber.

They would be glad, too, to have the United States commit even non-existent divisions to Europe, but the British are expected to boggle at the idea of sending more men of their own. Prime Minister Attlee and his Cabinet are not even sure, according to informed sources here, that this is the right time to form a North Atlantic army.

Labor ministers in London are said to fear that such a step would be too "provocative" toward the Soviet Union, and their hesitancy may be shared next week by Foreign Minister Schuman of France.

The idea of arming German divisions, and incorporating them into a combined army now, will have equally rough sailing in New York if Acheson submits it as an American proposal. For the French are by no means ready to see German units of division strength, even under an international command.

The British are expected to press for a strengthening of the west German Federal police as an offset to the virtual army of 50 to 60 thousand Germans, disguised as a "police force," which the Russians have created and trained in their eastern zone.

U. S. Position Summarized

The American position, as policy-makers have begun crystallizing it this week, is something like this:

(1) It would be wrong to set up a west German army; the Germans themselves do not want it, and the recreation of a German general staff would be dangerous for Germany and all of Europe.

(2) It would be equally wrong to create an army disguised as a "police force," in imitation of the Russians.

The German police now amount to 100,000 men in the west German states, and only a small central force would be needed to cope with internal disturbances.

(3) The only way to use German troops effectively and to expect recruits to come forward in sufficient numbers, is to incorporate them in a bigger multinational force. One official estimated yesterday that western Germany could provide 10 divisions within a year if the North Atlantic countries could supply them with arms and equipment.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.), a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, estimated yesterday that 60 Allied divisions would be needed in western Europe to stop a Soviet aggression. He said the United States should send 20 divisions to Europe in the next two years, 10 of them by next year.

Lodge called for a 30-division American army, as contrasted with present plans that call for 18 by next June 30. His 30 would be made up of 15 which, he predicted, would be needed for victory in Korea, 10 for Europe, and 5 for an "uncommitted reserve to meet any number of unpleasant possibilities."

U. S.-Soviet Settlement Needed For Korean Solution, Lie Says

CHICAGO, Sept. 8 (NYHT).—Secretary General Trygve Lie, of the United Nations, asserted tonight that U. N. forces must triumph in Korea, but that even when the victory is won, no permanently peaceful Korean solution is likely with a "general settlement" between Russia and the United States on many issues.

"During my term as secretary general, said Mr. Lie addressing a meeting of the U. N. Association of Chicago, "I have sought consistently to bring the two sides together. Now it is getting very late indeed. But it is never too late to negotiate in order to prevent a third world war. I do not believe it is too late now."

Recalling the 10-point 20-year peace plan which he presented personally this spring to officials in Washington, London, Paris and Moscow, the secretary general told his Chicago audience:

"When the U. N. has won its enforcement action in Korea—as we must—I want to see a new and great effort to start the wheels of negotiation turning again between East and West in the U. N.

"The first of the 10 points I proposed before the Korean crisis was that we start a series of special meetings of the Security Council, as the Charter provides, with Foreign Ministers or heads of state in attendance. I believe it is necessary to bring the policy-making officials of the governments together in periodic meetings of this kind. We should not expect dramatic results from such meetings. But if they were properly conducted, with private, informal sessions the rule, I believe they might in time lead to constructive results."

Judy's No Problem In a Trim Musical

By Richard L. Coe

A PROBLEM CHILD she may be to her employers, but Judy Garland is certainly Heaven's gift to Metro musicals. The gingery little lady is at the top of her form with Gene Kelly in "Summer Stock," the Capitol's pleasant musical.

There's something mighty pleasant about seeing Judy in a musical. Her twangy, nasal voice has been nauseatingly imitated by hundreds of vocalists, but on Judy it fits well. You rather like her throbbing way of breaking the singing rules and you don't in the least mind how she can turn one simple syllable into a parade of unrelated sounds. Her sleek legs have a way of telling you that she's enjoying her dancing and her wide-eyed, open-mouth style of acting is peculiarly likable.

Kelly is an admirable partner, as, indeed, he is for anyone. This time, though he does give most of the top spots to Judy, he's got a mighty tricky solo number, a dance with a squeaky board and some scraps of newspaper. It's crisp and original and I'll bet Kelly even had a tough time convincing the studio that so sophisticated (for lack of a closer meaning) a dance would hold the movie masses. The Capitol's audience applause after it certainly vindicates the eloquent dancer.

The story, which won't strain you, has to do with Judy's troubles running her farm and how her city-sister, Gloria De Haven, turns their barn into a rehearsal hall for a Broadway musical. Gloria gets overambitious as the "star," pulls out and Judy takes over, tossing away her boring farmer-suitor, Eddie Bracken, and falling blissfully into the arms of Kelly.

Production numbers abound, even though you farmer folk wouldn't quite recognize the barnyard and the great Syrjala himself couldn't drum up such spaces and settings for the Olney stage. Still, the expansive Joe Pasternak, who produced, evidently was held in some kind of check by that genial former dancing star, Charles Walters, who directed.

Canine Chorus

Judy starts things off in her shower singing, "If You Feel Like Singing, Sing"; then she gets on a tractor for a cheerful "Happy Harvest." "You, Wonderful You" is reprised throughout the show and its a nice tune. Judy's ballad is "Friendly Star," a not too notable effort. And there's a nice comedy duet for Sid Silvers and Kelly, as a couple of rubber-footed rubes, in "Heavenly Music," with a canine chorus.

Marjorie Main and Ray Collins give assists to Bracken and Silvers in the comedy division and the technicolor department is its rosy self.

Yes, "Summer Stock" is a trim, pleasant musical and its presence in town with "Sunset Boulevard" and "Louisa" certainly gives you an unusually good weekend for going to the movies.

THE CAPITOL'S stage bill is at its best with a very close quartet called "The Beachcombers." . . . Three guys and a gal—a native Hawaiian—shout out some mighty interesting harmonies to tunes that are reasonably, and mercifully, unfamiliar . . . I understand they've been on the Godfrey TV show, and if you want to enjoy 'em without the lines and dots, here's your chance; they're mighty good . . . Another good act is Nora Toomey, I suspect an English lass, who has an amusing gymnastic act . . . The comic is Artie Dann, who makes sport of his proboscis, which is one way of earning a living . . . James and Beverly Paysee open the bill with several pleasing dance routines.

THE NEW "George Washington" of the Sesqui's "Faith of Our Fathers," Lawrence Ryle, has been getting most encouraging word-of-mouth criticism from those who've revisited the drama since he took over the leading role . . . Ryle has had considerable professional experience.

THE CASE of the Missing Byline: that review of "Shakedown" yesterday morning came out in the paper with a missing line which should have read: "By Orval Hopkins." . . . Our Orval is quite a different guy from the sappy "Orville" being played by Eddie Bracken in "Summer Stock." . . . Hopkins, it should be noted, was out of his groove yesterday; he liked the picture.

"SUMMER STOCK," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release, produced by Joe Pasternak, directed by Charles Walters, screen play by George Wells and Sy Gomberg from a story by Gombera. At the Capitol.

Truman Apology to Marines Described as Morale Booster

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Marine Corps Commandant Gen. Clifton B. Cates said last night that President Truman's recent apology and tribute to the Corps "will bolster the morale of the Marines, especially those fighting in Korea."

Cates told the closing banquet of the Marine Corps League's convention that President Truman paid the Marine veterans a great compliment in attending the convention on Thursday, when he admitted he had made a mistake in criticizing the Marines.

Officially closing the incident as far as he was concerned, the Corps' commandant declared that "this is the time to forget our differences, political or inter-service, and get down to work."

Answering what he termed complaints from parents and Congressmen that the Marine Corps is sending over boys with insufficient training, Cates said "we are trying in every way to see that our troops are thoroughly trained."

He gave this "picture of the reserves" who had been called up: 51 percent thoroughly trained, 28 percent have had some training and required more, and 21 percent had to be sent to boot camp.

The commandant was introduced by Brig. Gen. James P. Devereux, USMC retired, master of ceremonies at the banquet, which was attended by about 500 members of the Marine Corps League and League auxiliary, their families and guests of honor. Among the guests were six Marines who are patients at the Naval Hospital in Bethesda.

Charles F. Johnson, jr., president of the Endicott-Johnson Shoe Co., was presented with a distinguished service award for his work on behalf of veterans. A similar award went to Connie Mack, Philadelphia "grand old man of baseball."

The convention elected Maurice J. Fagan, of Philadelphia, to succeed Nixon as national commandant. Fagan, who was national vice commandant for the Northeast Division, defeated Mason D. Wade, of St. Petersburg, Fla., by 5334 votes to 909.

John R. O'Brien of Passaic, N. J., chairman of the Americanism committee, defeated Melvin Maas, former Minnesota Representative and now a resident of 1505 Dale dr., Silver Spring, Md., for the post of national senior vice commandant, by a vote of 3527 to 3040.

Francis X. Lorbecki, Milwaukee, was voted chief of the Military Order of Devil Dogs, honor society of the Marine Corps League.

Warren Granger of New Alexandria, Va., was named a national vice commandant.

Reelected as the convention's business meetings drew to a close yesterday were George K. Shamgochian of Worcester, Mass., national judge advocate; Theus J. McQueen, adjutant-paymaster, and the Rev. Michael Halley of St. Francis Church, Mildred, Pa., chaplain.

Rat-Invaded City Sees Relief As Strike Ends

Fairmont, W. Va., Sept. 8 (AP).—Police said rats by the thousands trooped into town from the city dump early today to get at the garbage which hasn't been collected since Tuesday because of a strike.

Hugh Grassock, jr., said he killed 40 or 50 near his house before retreating inside to be sure they didn't get in.

Automobiles killed some of the animals along the road into town.

Much of Fairmont's garbage is deposited raw at the dump but none has been placed there since garbage collectors walked out, along with employes of the treasurer's office and the water department's maintenance division.

A prospect of relief appeared tonight when Charles J. E. Sattler, State labor commissioner, announced a settlement had been reached between the strikers and the city. Members of the United Mine Workers District 50, the strikers had sought a raise of $30 a month.

Marine Corps League Demands Ouster of Louis Johnson

ously protested that League Commandant Clyde Nixon, a leading proponent of the resolution, had called for a vote before giving them a chance to speak in opposition to it.

One of the dissenters was Robert C. Kilmartin, jr., 4514 Connecticut ave. nw., a retired brigadier general, who a few minutes later led the successful floor fight to reject a similar ouster resolution aimed at Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson.

President Truman got deeply involved in the League's convention activities earlier in the week when he criticized the Marines as having a "propaganda machine that is almost equal to Stalin's" and referred to the function of the Leathernecks as the "Navy's police force." The convention boiled with rage and indignation until Thursday, when the President made an unscheduled appearance before the delegates and publicly apologized and admitted his "mistake."

Plea Ignored

The League's resolutions committee ignored the President's plea and called on the convention to indorse its demands for the removal of Secretaries Johnson and Acheson.

Commandant Nixon carried the brunt of the fight for the Acheson ouster resolution. He charged that "there's still a lot of Reds in the State Department" and blamed the Secretary of State for giving the President wrong counsel.

Delegate Kilmartin reminded the delegates that the President had asked for the convention's support on Thursday and said that the League had no business in picking out and blaming specific individuals for Administrative policy.

The resolution was turned down by a two-to-one majority vote.

General Kilmartin, dressed in civies, then tried to obtain a reconsideration of the Johnson vote, but without avail. For one thing, the delegates were confused. Many believed that Kilmartin wanted the convention to reverse itself on its resolution demanding the elimination of Communists from State Department and other Government agencies.

The convention then went ahead and unanimously adopted a resolution calling for appointment of the commandant of the Marine Corps to the Joint Chiefs of Staff. It was a similar demand by a member of Congress which had ignited the President's remarks concerning the Marines.

At the same time, a letter from League Commandant Nixon to the President said in effect that the battle over Mr. Truman's language about the Marines was over.

The letter, delivered by two of Nixon's aides to Mr. Truman personally, said the President's letter of apology for calling the Marines propagandists and the Navy's police force had been read to the convention, which unanimously voted its satisfaction.

Army Lists D. C. Soldier Hurt in Korea

Pfc. William A. Crosson, 20, son of Mrs. Clyde E. Crosson, 1872 California st nw., has been injured in Korea.

Pfc. Crosson

A member of the 24th Infantry Regiment, Crosson was slightly injured August 11, according to a Defense Department telegram received by his mother. In a letter his mother received Tuesday, Crosson wrote he was in an Army hospital at Osaka, Japan, but did not tell the extent of his injury.

A native of Richmond, Va., Crosson lived in Washington since he was 18 months old and went to Randall Junior High School here.

He enlisted in the Army on December 31, 1947, and after training at Fort Dix, N. J., was sent to Japan where he has been for 28 months. He has a brother, Theotric Arrendell, 28, a veteran of World War II; and two sisters, Mrs. Flora Walker, 26, and Mrs. Lois Long, 24, all of Washington.

A Virginia and three Maryland GIS also appeared on Defense Department Casualty List No. 89.

Pfc. Walter O. Horne, son of Mrs. Carlin J. Edwards, Stafford, Va., is missing in action.

Pfc. Edward O. Petry, son of David O. Petry, Route 4, Westminster, Md., has been wounded.

Pfc. Cernon G. Mulligan, son of Mrs. Mary A. Mulligan, of Hagerstown; and Pfc. James W. Rafferty, son of Mrs. Nora Ellen Rafferty, Frostburg, are also missing.

Truman Signs Servicemen's Allotment Bill

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday signed a bill granting monthly allowances of $45 to $85 to enlisted servicemen to help care for their families. This is in addiiton to their regular pay.

To be eligible for these allowances the enlisted men will have to allot part of their pay to their families. These allotments will range from $40 to $80 monthly, depending on a man's pay grade.

The allowances are retroactive to August 1. It is estimated that from that date to June 30, 1951, the cost to the Government will be about 300 million dollars.

Enlisted men in the lower three pay grades wil receive an allowance of $45 for one dependent. Those in the four higher pay grades will be allowed $67.50 for one dependent.

All seven pay grades will be granted $67.50 if they have two dependents. Likewise all grades will be allowed $85 if they have three or more dependents

Enlisted men in the lower three pay grades are required to contribute $40 from their monthly pay. Men in the next two higher grades (E-4 and E-5) will allot $60, and those in the top two grades (E-6 and E-7) $85.

Deductions from their pay remain the same regardless of the number of dependents.

Thus an Army private, whose pay is $80 monthly, would allot $40 to his wife and the Government would grant $45 more. This would give her $85 a month.

If the private has a wife and one child he would still allot only $40, but the Government would contribute $67.50.

U. S. Held Unprepared For A-Attack

CLEVELAND, Sept. 8 (AP).—The Amvets today declared America is "completely unprepared" for an atomic bomb attack and called for an immediate all-out preparedness program.

The 4500 delegates to the Amvets' sixth national convention approved a resolution recommending:

Organization of a home guard militia, a mass civilian training program, a 1 billion-dollar evacuation housing program and a 1 million-dollar emergency equipment program.

The group also heard Thomas K. Finletter, Secretary of the Air Force, declare the United States must build a defense force so strong as to discourage any aggression against us.

The resolution to prepare fully against atomic warfare was presented by Caryl Warner, chairman of the Amvets civilian defense committee.

Warner, a Los Angeles attorney, said a survey of more than 50 of the Nation's major cities disclosed that local officials generally want some sort of preparedness program, but are anxious to retain organization on a local level.

Economic Progress Asked To Curb Reds

PARIS, Sept. 8. (U.P.)—The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development said today it has lent nearly one billion dollars and learned that trying to advise borrowing nations on use of money is a difficult, often thankless, task.

In the fifth annual report to the 48 member nations, Eugene R. Black, bank president said the bank's experience has shown that some nations are unwilling to accept "unpalatable" recommendations calling for changes in tax systems, land reforms or postponement of various projects.

The report said the bank's net income for the year ended June 30 was $13,698,398. For the entire five years, the net income was $27,339,492.

Black, representing the United States, urged the free nations of the world to fight communism with solid economic progress.

"What is now happening in Korea is not a struggle for a few thousand square miles of land," he said. "It is a part of a struggle for hearts and minds of hundreds of millions of people throughout the world."

He urged that despite threats of another war, the nations should continue working on redevelopment projects.

France Seen Ready to Make Germany Ally

PARIS, Sept. 8. (U.P.)—French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman leaves Sunday for the Big Three Foreign Ministers' meeting in New York, prepared to take a leading role in moves to make an ally of France's traditional enemy, Germany.

Schuman has instructions that even as short a time as a year ago the French government never would have considered.

His instructions, designed to promote the inclusion of Germany in the anti-Communist cold war bloc, include:

1. Acceptance of an increase in German steel production above the 11 million-ton annual ceiling now in force. This would speed western rearmament.
2. Encouragement of German production of trucks, machinery and other gods that could be used in the rearmament drive.
3. Acceptance of an increase of as many as 30,000 men in the West German police forces.
4. Permission for the West German government to set up a foreign office under the supervision and possible veto of the Allied high commanders.

British Unions Hit Operation Of Industries

BRIGHTON, England, Sept. 8 (NYHT).—British trade unionists told the Labor government today that they were dissatisfied with the operation of nationalized industries.

"If we can't run them efficiently, for God's sake let us hand them back to private enterprise," one delegate declared at the conference of the Trades Union Congress here.

Speakers said there was no "democracy" in the nationalized industries and demanded that control over them be placed in the hands of the workers. The conference, however, with the aid of the bloc votes of the large conservative unions, refused to indorse resolutions urging drastic changes in the structure of the nationalized industries.

But the miners and the railway men, who poll more than a million votes between them, forced the general council of the TUC to agree to consider what steps could be taken to reduce the heavy burden of compensation that is keeping most of the nationalized industries deep in the red.

The chemical workers' union moved the most radical resolution on nationalization. It said "the existing methods of control and administration are not in keeping with democratic principles and have not fulfilled the hopes of the industrial workers.' It called for "the establishment of industrial parliaments for each of the nationalized industries."

Lincoln Evans, head of the Iron and Steel Trades Confederation, who opposed the resolution for the general council, said it was "impractical and contained some highly questionable statements." He said, "You cannot conduct nationalized industries along the lines Parliament is conducted."

The conference rejected the resolution and then considered another asking "that at least one third of the members appointed to the boards of nationalized industries shall be representatives of the Trade Union Movement."

Reds Urged to Hit Back at French Police Crackdown

PARIS, Sept. 8 (AP).—French Communist leaders today urged their labor followkers to demonstrate against the Government's sudden crackdown on foreign Reds in France. They said police have signed expulsion orders against 700, in addition to the 266 rounded up yesterday.

The Interior Ministery declined comment on the 700 figure.

Scores of aliens corraled were taken in trucks to Strasbourg today and handed over to French occupation officials across the Rhine for transfer to Soviet-occupied East Germany.

PARIS, Sept. 8 (NYHT).—Abbe Jean Boulier, a French Catholic priest with political convictions that frequently place him next to Communist Party leaders at rallies of "front" organizations, is to be suspended from his priestly office Sunday, it was anounced today.

Monsignor Maurice Feltin, Archbishop of Paris, said the articles that the Abbe has published "no longer allow us to be patient and oblige us to be severe."

Mystery Letters in Morals Case Blamed On Defendant's Daughter by Police Expert

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

A Police Department handwriting expert testified yesterday that the mystery letters in the Robert S. Williams, jr., morals case were written by the defendant's 18-year-old daughter.

The charge brought a heated denial by the defense lawyers on behalf of the girl, Evangeline Williams, tall blonde Wilson High School graduate.

It was through the two letters that Williams, 45-year-old widower, of 4537 49th st. nw., sought to obtain a new trial in the case in which he was convicted last April of indecently exposing himself before two teen-age girls near American University.

The letter-writer said in the missives sent to authorities that he was the culprit and that Williams was innocent. Although Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King promised the writer immunity, no one ever appeared to make the admission.

Williams was found guilty five months ago, but has yet to be sentenced. He has steadfastly maintained it is a case of mistaken identity.

The initial fireworks in the case began during the trial when Williams' lawyers had reporters excluded from the courtroom. It brought a protest and Municipal Court Judge Aubrey B. Fennell said newsmen had a right to be present.

Then Williams, a trustee of the All - Souls Unitarian Church, brought in as character witness the Rev. A. Powell Davies, his pastor, as well as Judge Frank H. Myers and a host of other reputable persons. But Judge Fennell said there was no doubt in his mind of Williams' guilt.

On the appearance of the letters, Williams asked that a handwriting and fingerprint check be made. In turn, King said all defense witnesses, including Mr. Davies, should submit specimens. The minister complied, and demanded but did not get a public apology for implications behind King's statement.

Didn't Make Complete Check

The first witness yesterday was Pvt. A. B. Masters, of the police fingerprint bureau. He said he had not made a complete check of fingerprints on the letters, because he learned Gullickson had identified the handwriting.

However, Masters said the fingerprints were not those of Williams or of the person Gullickson named.

Next, Gullickson testified. He said he checked numerous samples, including Evangeline's.

"When I received her sample, I immediately recognized some of the writing to be that on the questioned letters. I felt quite certain, but doublechecked it by examining handwriting in her file at Wilson High School. It was, in my opinion, the same handwriting," said Gullickson.

At Judge Fennell's request, Gullickson agreed to make charts to show how he reached the conclusion. Judge Fennell said he would continue the case until Monday to take testimony concerning the charts.

Defense Attorney Paul J. Connolly rose to shout an objection to the continuance.

"A charge has been made here that the defendant's daughter is trying to perpetrate a tremendous hoax and fraud on the court. We are prepared at this time to completely destroy that charge, which is character assassination," said Connolly.

"This young lady has led an exemplary life, and I would like the court and the press to know there is no foundation for the charge. We have two handwriting experts present to prove that she could not have written the letters. The Government has not substantiated the charge."

Denies Daughter Wrote Letters

Nevertheless, Judge Fennell ruled the case would not go forward until Monday.

In response to reporters' questions, Williams said:

"I would deny to my dying day that I wrote the letters or that Evangeline did. I have known my daughter for 18 years and am sure that the thought would never enter her head. She is not that kind of a kid."

Connolly said his associate, James C. Rogers, showed handwriting charts they prepared. There were samples of Evangeline's handwriting along with words culled from the letters. To a layman, the handwriting appeared to differ.

No mention was made of any motive behind the letters. King on other occasions has expressed the belief that perhaps the writer is trying to shield Williams.

Juvenile Bureau to Expand

venile delinquency if it involved something minor, like a broken window, a neighborhood bully or something similar, because of the paper work and time involved in handling a complete case.

Thus, it may be that many juveniles whose minor delinquencies were overlooked and who could develop into criminals will now receive the attention and, if necessary, the discipline to make good citizens of them.

Barrett said that by the end of this month, when the police school graduates 77 new rookies, he hopes to have screened 15 or 20 men with aptitude for working with juveniles from the new class and present police personnel.

Under the new plan, the juvenile squad comes under the supervision of Inspector Robert V. Murray, chief of detectives.

Barrett said that from now on when juveniles are arrested, they will be taken immediately to the Receiving Home in a headquarters cruiser. When the extra men become available, Barrett added, there will be a juvenile squad car on the street every hour of the day.

This, the police superintendent asserted, would be far better than under the old arrangement whereby when a youth of under 18 was arrested, he was detained at a precinct stationhouse, sometimes for as long as two hours, until a car arrived from the Receiving Home to pick him up.

Informed of the plan, Juvenile Court Judge Cockrill commented: "This is definitely a step in the right direction and an improvement over what they have now. I am interested in seeing this tried out. But just like anything else new, it will have to be evaluated from time to time to see if any changes are necessary."

Present at Barrett's press conference yesterday were Ryan, Murray and Inspector Walter T. Storm, assistant superintendent of police.

At the meeting, Ryan turned over to Barrett a report of work done by the juvenile bureau during the fiscal year of 1950.

The report showed the bureau examined and screened 5406 complaints during the year, involving 3189 boys, all under 18.

This is what happened to the 3189 boys:

A total of 3709 complaints, involving 1492 of the boys, went to Juvenile Court for adjudication.

Complaints involving 206 of the boys were dropped—either because the complaint was unfounded or withdrawn.

Complaints involving 1491 boys were withheld from Juvenile Court and these boys were placed on unofficial police probation as first offenders.

The report stated that in fiscal 1950, only 132 boys, who had been placed on unofficial police probation, had been arrested a second time. Of this number, 65 had been warned during fiscal 1950, 43 the previous year, 14 in 1948, 6 in 1947, 4 in 1946 and 1 in 1945.

The above figures did not include 111 complaints involving 106 girls which were forwarded to the Women's Bureau.

3 Sentenced in Boldware Case

Three men were sentenced to prison terms yesterday for the $6900 robbery on February 25 of Mrs. Blanche Boldware, widow of William H. (Sunshine) Boldware, a former numbers racket character here.

Sentenced by Judge Jennings Bailey of District Court were Ernest Price, jr., 24, of 2800 13th st. nw., who received one to three years in prison; Leroy Bundy, 28, of 2238 8th st. nw, three to nine years, and James E. Craig, jr., 31, no fixed address, three to nine years.

The three were charged with forcing their way into the Boldware home, 125 R st. ne., at gunpoint, herding Mrs. Boldware and her sister, Mrs. Lucille Porter, into a bedroom, and ransacking the house. The men took jewelry valued at $6900, according to police.

In Municipal Court, Judge George D. Neilson sentenced Mrs. Marjorie M. Hughes, 52, of 1222 Allison st. ne., to serve 90 days in jail and pay $200 in fines. She was convicted of failure to pay board bills in connection with visits to the Roger Smith Hotel, the Carlton Hotel and the Lee House.

"Wogs" And "Gooks"

The Manchester Guardian has added its voice to resent protests against the easy American facility for invention of derisive and derogatory words. They have in mind, particularly, the identification of both Korean friends and foes as "gooks"—a habit which, they say, is doing great damage to the American cause in Asia. Says the Guardian: "Nobody seems to know the origin of the word, but it is meant to be offensive." The newspaper recalls the damage done to the British with the invention of the "mischievous word wog" by the British in India, and it warns that "gook" will go as far as "wog" did in undermining Western prestige, even further at this more critical time in Asian and world history. It seems to this newspaper that this is a reasonable conjecture. The problem is to discover a formula for ending the national facility!

New Juvenile Bureau

There is some comfort for Washingtonians in the annual reports of the Police Department and the Juvenile Court, but not much. Police Chief Barrett has informed the Commissioners that serious felonies in the District decreased 5.9 percent in fiscal 1950 while increasing 4.5 percent during the calendar year 1949 in the Nation as a whole. That is a notable improvement for which the police are to be commended. Law-abiding citizens will naturally focus their attention, however, on the 13,057 serious felonies that were reported in the District last year, of which police cleared 59.6 percent. As to homicides and rape cases, the police did remarkably well in clearing nearly all of the crimes reported. The record of 4349 assaults (82.7 percent cleared), 3447 burglaries (38.9 percent cleared), 1965 grand larcenies (41 percent cleared) and 1744 auto thefts (49.4 percent cleared) is nevertheless a disgrace to the Nation's Capital. It remains a challenge to citizens and police alike.

While adult crimes were declining, delinquency complaints rose 10.3 percent, according to the Juvenile Court report. Nearly one fourth of the serious felonies in the District were committed by juveniles. This is the most deplorable aspect of the city's crime problem. Fortunately, the police are preparing to give more attention to juvenile crime. Yesterday Major Barrett announced a reorganization of the Juvenile Bureau that will ultimately give it 25 men (in place of the present 10) specializing in juvenile offenses. The enlarged juvenile unit, now to function under the Detective Bureau, will have a cruising car on the streets 24 hours a day. Men with special aptitude for this type of work will take charge of children picked up for violations of law instead of having them arrested by regular policemen and held temporarily at precinct stations. Juvenile Bureau detectives will also follow the cases of delinquent youngsters through the Juvenile Court, which is expected to result in more effective law enforcement as well as more enlightened treatment of the children involved. Major Barrett and his associates are entitled to hearty applause for this progressive move.

Esau And Jacob

Senator Tobey, whose political fate will be decided on Tuesday in the New Hampshire primaries, is having the fight of his life, and the eyes of the politicos are being drawn to it. The contest is a novel one, since the veteran legislator finds himself ranged not against a man, but a Charley McCarthy by the name of Wesley Powell. To enter the primaries Mr. Powell resigned from his job as administrative assistant to Senator Bridges. Senator Bridges has ostentatiously kept out of the struggle, but few of the people in New Hampshire have been fooled, and for Wesley Powell they are reading Senator Bridges, who controls the State machine. Thus, if Powell wins, New Hampshire will have one Senator with two votes.

If that were the whole story, then Senator Tobey might not feel himself pushed, for he has hitherto depended, not on organization, but on the people. However, he finds mobilized against him a host of powerful enemies on whose toes he has stepped in the very process of defending their interest. They are sparing no effort and no expense to unseat Senator Tobey. Perhaps they are overdoing it, for free and sumptuous dinners, such as are being given by the Powell organization throughout the State, have an ancient and fish-like smell at election times which, traditionally, the New England nostril suspects. At any rate, free meals are unusual in contests in thrifty New England.

As the race gets into homestretch Senator Tobey, after conforming to the convention that his opponent is really named Wesley Powell, is reported to be tearing off this North Korean camouflage, and closing in with his real opponents. In other words, the 70-year-old Senator is doing what he has been doing all his long and useful political life—that is to say, showing fight.

Defending Europe

The chief problem confronting the Foreign Ministers when they meet in New York next Tuesday is said to be the rearmament of Western Germany. This is not the way to state the problem. What Foreign Minister Schuman with Chancellor Adenauer's backing, is going to propose, it is reported, is the integration of Western Germany into a defense system for western Europe, with a single army under the command of an American. There is no other way, consistent both with security and with the re-establishment of a European order, to consider the rearmament of Western Germany.

More words have been spilled over this subject, more committees formed, more time wasted, and more show windows dressed out, than over any other issue of concern to the Western world. The issue must be raised out of the blind alley where it now resides. It is now clear that this can be done only by American leadership—logically enough, in view of the puissant power of America. Well, the French will find the United States at last ready to take the initiative in this historical project. The decision has been achieved to reinforce the American formation in Europe as part of the Army of the West with at least six divisions, and it is a pregnant and a momentous achievement. When the Europeans and the Canadians have made their contributions, an American commander in chief will be named, but till then the appointee will be called chief of staff. It is said that General Eisenhower, who since the Korean aggression has patriotically intimated to the President that he is at his disposal for a suitable position, will be appointed. However that may be, the Rubicon has been crossed, and it is now up to the other signatories of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to do their part, and build up a real army which, it is said, should total 50 divisions.

The challenge will thus be passed back to the other members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. NATO has hitherto dragged along as a papier mache grouping because of interminable "We'll do this if you do that" pow-wows. Now the initiative has been assumed, the example provided, the leadership furnished—what are the others going to do? The Canadians have to get over a hurdle, sadly revealed in the reaction to aggression in Korea, which frustrates the commitment of troops outside their frontiers. Britain is schizophrenic over the defense of Europe. France is eager to sacrifice sovereignty and throw in her lot with a united Europe, but her domestic situation is the subject of anxiety on the part of all the NATO partners, and needs urgent repair.

Here, indeed, is the key problem, for France would be the base and supply route for the American force to be established in Western Germany. It must be put in order. A housecleaning is of prime importance in France as a safeguard also for a European army. Communist infiltration is said to be growing apace—in the air force, in the atomic organization, in the Garde Mobile, even, it is said, in the non-Communist workers' organization, the Force Ouvriere. All returning travelers concur in the conclusion that internal security, which used to be in good and energetic hands when Jules Moch was Minister of the Interior, has deteriorated markedly, and that Frenchmen in all walks of life are taking out what is known as a Communist "hedge." France, indeed, has a lot to do in translating word into deed, in pulling her weight in the new combination as a responsible coequal.

However, all the partners in their several ways must now pull together in building up a European army to fill what Mr. Churchill calls the "hideous gap" in Europe. What is required of them is that they shall follow the lead of America which they have said so frequently is the sine qua non. The clock stands so close to 12 o'clock that further quibbling is simply playing with survival. The risk that the United States will assume is one of great magnitude, and, indeed, an invitation to suicide if unity, still proves a will o' the wisp and the degeneration in the heart of Europe is not arrested and cured. But there was really no option but to take our military frontier to the Elbe, with a common civilization in its present peril. Let NATO members resolve their doubts in the same bold manner, and devote themselves with faith and effort to achieve the grand objective, so insuring peace in our time, insofar as it can be insured.

Guilt By Interrogation

In his attack on the loyalty of Secretary of the Interior Chapman the other day, Senator Schoeppel maintained a pretense that he was making no accusations but was merely asking questions. His questions were answered by the Secretary fully and forthrightly and with documentation at a hearing Thursday morning. Will the Senator now make suitable amends for an error and an injustice which he committed either consciously or unconsciously?

One consequence of his error is an Associated Press report from Bellingham, Wash., that an invitation extended to the Secretary to speak at an international boundary peace arch celebration on September 22 has been canceled because his record had been questioned by a member of the Senate. It happens that this story is a fabrication. The invitation was declined by Mr. Chapman on August 26 because of the press of other engagements. Apparently an attempt is under way to make political capital of Senator Schoeppel's "questions." Does Senator Schoeppel want to lend himself to this attempt?

In the overheated atmosphere of today, the mere questioning of a Federal official's loyalty can be extremely damaging—even when, as in this case, the questioning is patently capricious and unwarranted. The technique of imputing guilt by accusation has now been made familiar by Senator McCarthy; perhaps Senator Schoeppel has discovered a refinement—the imputation of guilt by interrogation. It could have even more disastrous effects upon national unity. The Senator can, of course, repair the injustice for which he was responsible by acknowledging that it was founded upon error.

Too Much And Too Slow

So celebrated an expert as Maj. Gen. J. F. C. Fuller has set forth his thoughts on the military lessons of Korea in a copyrighted interview with the U. S. News and World Report. The fighting in Korea, the general believes, has demonstrated that the infantry is suffering from too much organization and too much equipment. "The United States," he says, "has nothing to be alarmed or ashamed about concerning the courage and grit of the American soldier . . . The American soldier always gives a good account of himself. What's wrong in Korea is something different . . . The American soldiers weren't readied, weren't prepared for the task and terrain with which they are now having to deal."

For one thing, it seems, the infantry is weighted down by too much equipment. Still, there is nothing peculiarly American about this tendency to turn the infantrymen into coolies or pack mules; it has been going on, according to General Fuller, since the Roman legions. What appears to be peculiarly American, however, is the ratio of machines and gadgets, such as radios and jeeps, and of PX supplies.

All this makes for confusion in the supply services, and at the same time deprives the fighting units of the quality most desirable under the conditions that confront them. What they lack is mobility. No infantryman, says the general, ought to carry more than a third of his own weight. Assuming an average weight of 180 pounds, this would make a pack of not more than 60 pounds, and "it also must be remembered that a 60-pound pack when wet weighs 75 pounds."

General Fuller did not go as far as to assert, in as many words, that old-fashioned horse cavalry would be more suited to the kind of terrain and warfare met with in Korea; but he did suggest that the kind of troops formerly employed by the British on the northwestern frontier of India would have found themselves more at home in Korea. In any event, divisional training and divisional units are much too large for military work nowadays. "The smaller unit—the brigade unit—is less cumbersome, more dependent on the initiative of the individual soldier." The ideal force for Korea would be "a modern mobile version of the old Kentucky backwoodsman with a superb modern weapon and a minimum of gear."

What is wrong with strategic bombing, says General Fuller, is that it frequently isn't strategic. "What good is there in bombing primitive industrial plants when practically the whole of the Communist supplies are coming from Russia? [Since] you aren't prepared to bomb Vladivostok, the right idea would have been to have divided those 7000 tons of bombs [already dropped behind the North Korean lines] between the two main coastal railroads and on the concentrations of the advance Communists south of the thirty-eighth parallel."

However, General Fuller thoroughly approves the use of heavy bombers and Superfortresses for bombing ground troops from low altitudes. "The accuracy of such bombing is always doubtful; but you may be certain that if you drop 1000 tons of bombs in such a small area everything in the area will be disorganized, though not many men may be actually killed . . . You can't do anything when bombs are showering down . . . Even if great numbers aren't killed, you've disorganized your enemy. That will give you time."

Taking the world military situation by and large, the great need, General Fuller thinks, is for highly trained and highly mobile forces, prepared to rush almost anywhere at the shortest possible notice—or what might be called the Jim Konstanty principle of global strategy. These units, if we follow General Fuller's reasoning, are even more important than massive land armies. Anyway, the Russians excel in manpower; but their very strength in this particular constitutes a weakness. Their armies are cumbersome and slow moving. Therefore "the secret of victory lies in multiplying the speed of mobility, the imaginative use of tank and airplane. Mobility tends to magnify striking power until the less mobile enemy becomes bewildered and panicky."

Indeed, General Fuller believes that highly trained mobile forces—or "fire brigades," as he likes to call them—might be the decisive element in a general war. And while it may be desirable to have large armies also in readiness, it may not prove necessary to use them.

THESE ARE YOUR SHADOWS

And these are your shadows,
O, proud dead;
these homes in peaceful rows,
a child asleep in its bed;
the sun touched fields of grain.
These are the shadows of your death,
the Flag, our Liberty, the broken chain.
These flowered from your breath,
the seed, the rose, the fruited tree.
These are your shadows, O, proud dead,
a free river, the unpossessed sea,
a child asleep in its bed.

Non-Segregated Pools

Another milestone on the way back to free citizenship and democracy was passed when the first full year of non-segregated swimming was ended here in Washington on Labor Day. Of 235,000 swimmers in public swimming pools about 145,000 were white and about 90,000 colored. None of the feared incidents occurred.

This was largely due to usual fair play and good sportsmanship of truly American citizens, but also to the careful and splendid planning of the authorities of the Interior Department and the many individuals and agencies determined to give democracy even in so touchy a situation as public swimming a fair trial. Among the methods used was a program of intercultural education for police and swimming pool personnel, refusal to let propaganda groups exploit the situation, close cooperation with honest civic-minded groups, and avoidance of inflammatory news reporting.

Although the attendance figures show a decline in the use of the public pools, a part of this is accounted for in that we have had an abnormally cool summer. And of course those who were fearful of incidents and who resent "mixed" swimming sought pools, both private and public, where swimmers more congenial to their likes might be. This is as much of a right in our democratic way as is the attendance of pupils in parochial or private schools. It was noteworthy that buses of both white and colored playground children from Arlington County, Virginia, went daily to the Potomac Park pool.

A most valuable element in this public demonstration is that such events give the lie to subversive propagandists who say democracy can't work. Much credit belongs to the leadership and the citizens who determined to hold back the proponents of the status quo in race relations and the onward march of democracy here in the Nation's Capital. We also commend the press for its fine job of objective reporting. Now that this program has been a success and the good will of most of our citizens demonstrated there should be no fear of making faster progress in other citizenship endeavors.

China Policy

It is estimated that there are sharp differences between Russia and China because of conflicting interests in Manchuria and Inner Mongolia. If this is so, one wonders if it would not be well to try to wean Red China away from Russia. Certainly Nationalist China mishandled and misappropriated millions of our dollars that we sent them to help them overcome their Red enemies.

Chiang Kai-shek may personally be all right but he seems to have been at the head of rather a freebooting government hardly worth our while sacrificing scores of thousands of our boys to put back in power.

Russia is our chief and very terrible enemy. It would appear we are fools to try to take on nearly a billion Communists if we can divide them. It would be almost equivalent to slaughtering our own boys.

Hager Report

Recently I took the opportunity to commend Dr. Walter E. Hager, president of Wilson Teachers College for his report to Dr. Corning. It was quite proper that Dr. Hager should make such a report and I certainly admire his moral courage in doing so. I wonder how many others wrote to him and congratulated him?

It is my fervent prayer that the members of the Board of Education do "take this statesmanlike step." The only logical place to begin the ending of segregation in the school system is at the teacher level and this should be done at once. If members of the board do not act in this matter they will have struck a powerful blow against democracy. We cannot afford to preach one thing internationally and do the opposite here at home. Dr. Hager's recommendation is most certainly a step in the right direction and if acted upon immediately would serve to let the rest of the world know that we are cleaning up our own backyard. Things like this are immensely important if we are to combat Communist propaganda. This is how we as civilians can actively join the fight against communism. Our soldiers are fighting against it over in Korea so why shouldn't we here at home?

The members of the Board of Education of Washington now have the opportunity to go down in history as men of great moral courage. I pray that God gives them the guidance, the strength, and the stamina needed to see this grave problem to a successful conclusion. I believe that they have the support of the majority of people in this city. Most certainly they should have.

"Origin Of The Fourteenth Amendment"

Permit a dissent to your scholarly editorial in The Post titled "Origin of the Fourteenth Amendment."

Your contention, as I understand it, is that the Amendment was not intended, historically, to embrace the Bill of Rights; that from the debates in Congress and in the State legislatures there emerges no clear and distinct picture as to what "privileges and immunities" were being protected, and that therefore it is not a comforting thought that four members of the Supreme Court (in Adamson v. California) should, rather dogmatically, seek to overturn, without historical warrant, a long-established view of the Amendment.

Now the trouble with this view is (1) it is not grounded in the plain and inescapable language of the Amendment itself, and (2) it is not consistent with the highlights of the historical background—note, please, my use of the term "highlights," for as a historian it is my belief that where confusion exists as to legislative intention, we must consider the lights rather than the shadows.

The Amendment says plainly. "No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of the citizens of the United States . . ."

Now, to contend that these words do not, or perhaps I should say, should not mean what they say is to belittle the value of language and impeach the principles of common sense. What are "the privileges and immunities" of citizens of the United States? Why exclude those embedded in the Bill of Rights? Is not the Bill of Rights an integral part of the Constitution?

But further, and more important than this, are we to assume that Congress is to formulate, and the States adopt, language which must be read in the light of some mental reservation, or which must be given some peculiar twist to satisfy the views of those who didn't realize what they were adopting?

Here, then, the burden of proof shifts, and we may well take a look at the lights and shadows of the historical setting. Now the researches of Professor Stanley Morrison and Professor Charles Fairman are of tremendous value, but the conclusions drawn therefrom by these Stanford University scholars are hardly to be taken without some critical analysis.

First of all, in the passage of any measure through Congress, even an Amendment for submission to the States, there is rarely agreement as to what the purport of it is. When, as too often is the case, confusion or indifference exists, then special weight must be given to what the sponsors say about it.

Now there is no doubt that Senator Jacob M. Howard was in charge of the Amendment's passage in the Senate. There is no doubt that he made it very clear the Amendment as proposed was meant to include the "personal rights guaranteed and secured by the first eight Amendments of the Constitution."

You suggest this "attracted little attention"? Does that argue against its validity? Are we to assume that the plain language of the Amendment itself, which dovetails precisely and exactly into the sponsor's claim for it, is a matter of no moment, and that because certain of his colleagues, or most of them, were inattentive or indifferent to this logical and "official" explanation that therefore posterity or the Supreme Court should make the same mistake? I say "official," because any significant claim for a measure, made by its sponsor, especially when in accord with the language of it, is usually taken at its face value by those opposing it.

However, and this is not to belie the extent of the exhaustive research of Messrs. Fairman and Morrison, the fact remains that in the State legislatures there was no opposition to the Amendment on the ground it could or would embrace the Bill of Rights; it was simply a case of little or no mention of this phase. Yet, obviously, it was a very important phase.

Are we therefore to assume that the Supreme Court should show an equal ignorance of the fundamental law of the land, the Constitution of the United States? What is the Supreme Court for but to interpret things in the light of the whole law? And what, perforce, are the first eight Amendments of the Constitution but a set of "privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States"?

Most members of Congress are lawyers. A considerable portion of members of the State legislatures are lawyers. If, however, by inattention to their duties or unawareness of the provisions of the Constitution, they are poor lawyers, then surely it is not the duty of the Supreme Court to send the Amendment back to them and say, as if to children, "you did not mean what you said."

No, the Supreme Court takes, or should take, the laws as they are written, or the Amendments as they are phrased—unless, of course, there is confusion or reasonable doubt as to the meaning of the language itself—and relate them to the text of the Constitution itself. Here is the true "historical setting," and here is the true interpretation.

'Allure' And Propaganda

By Malvina Lindsay

Pin-Up Girl Culture

THE CHOOSING of Miss America today at Atlantic City may seem to some a strange backdrop for the grim news from the Korean battle front. But so does much else that is going on. After all, why not glamour—as well as politics and business—as usual?

The big beauty tournament at Atlantic City is now on a conservative swing with increasing emphasis on talent and personality, and with its awards heavily loaded with scholarships. But it remains the symbol of a revolution in social attitudes in this country that has made the pin-up girl seem the symbol of American womanhood.

Now the question is being widely raised as to whether the revolt against the bluenoses may not have been carried too far. For it has given much meat to foreign propagandists against the United States. It has also given much of the world a false concept of American women. And in the opinion of some authorities it is contributing to the sex crime situation.

The Atlantic City contest in pulchritude, which began almost simultaneously with the jazz decade, cannot be blamed for causing this. Hollywood had contributed the bathing beauty long before. And the nose-thumbing at Mrs. Grundy was under way when the first World War opened.

BUT THE choosing of Miss America has been now for three decades the annual photographic climax of what is assumed to be American absorption in the display of the feminine figure. It has been part of a trend that has increasingly filled magazines, newspapers, billboards, comic strips and now television screens, with beauty and popularity queens of every conceivable variety, with an endless procession of bathing girls, sweater girls, cover girls, pin-up girls, as well as fiction heroines, housewives, careerists, all exhibiting a large part of the "Body Beautiful," or at least the "Body Basic."

Naturally this photography, or rather "art" as it is called, has gone all over the world, especially by means of movies and picture magazines. Soviet propagandists, suddenly become Puritanical, have seized on it to shout about the "vulgarity" of Americans and their fixation on sex. But even friendly peoples find this constant deluge of American "leg art" and bathing beauties hard to understand. In European Beliefs Regarding the United States, a report of a survey by the Common Council for American Unity, representative observers of opinion abroad decry the increasing number of Europeans who think of the feminine side of America in terms of the pin-up girl. And the American feminine tourist abroad, when she goes scantily clad in public, helps further this misconception and disapproval.

The cult of bodily allure that has developed, or at least come into the open, under the "new freedom" is helping invite sex crime, in the opinion of some social workers and police authorities. Girls from an early age are encouraged on all sides, it is pointed out, to develop and exhibit their physical allure. Frequently this is done, wittingly or unwittingly, with great indiscretion.

"WE NEED a new national heroine," write Norman and Amelia Lobsenz in an article in the current Everybody's Digest entitled "How Women Invite Sex Crime." "Not a Carrie Nation," say these authors, "but neither the sweater girl, whose main claim to fame seems to be the shape of her body and how much of it she is willing to reveal. This new heroine would recognize sex as a natural part of our modern life. But she would be as eager to display her wit, her charm, her intelligence and her integrity as her sexuality."

The real danger is not so much from feminine exhibitionism, as from the hold that pin-up girl culture may get on us. The pathetic quest on all sides for glamour, beauty, esteem, love by means of artificial aids, by synthetic charm, by conscious, obvious, physical display has grown to a large extent out of the commercialism of feminine "allure." But it has been strengthened by the public's careless surface acceptance of such values.

Any criticism of present-day feminine exhibitionism is always met with the defense that only the nasty-minded see anything wrong with it, and that the prudes of the past (or of other countries) were and are no better morally than the sweater or bathing girl of today.

It is true that we have been well rid of some false modesty of the past. And perhaps many foreigners who criticize the American pin-up girl are living in glass houses. But in a complex society in which mental illness, crime, other social ills are increasing, some concessions have to be made to good taste and common sense, as well as to Mrs. Grundy. And this country's role in the world is more and more placing the American woman in the position of Caesar's wife.

UMW's Welfare Fund

By Marquis Childs

Administrative Autocracy

JOHN L. LEWIS and his co-trustee and long-time friend and associate, Miss Josephine Roche, exert absolute authority over the United Mine Workers' welfare fund. That fund is accumulating at roughly a rate of 150 million dollars a year.

Childs

As reporters in Washington well know, efforts to get any information about how it functions meet with little success. Yet, there is a chance that some of the facts will be blasted out.

A suit is pending in Federal court here, filed by S. H. Livengood, a miner of Uniontown, Pa., who asks for an accounting and removal of the trustees. Now there is the strong likelihood that W. L. P. Burke, who was for 2½ years general counsel for the fund, will join in this suit. Burke broke with Lewis in May of this year.

If the suit is opened up and really pushed, there would be some interesting disclosures. One of the witnesses to be called would be Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

MISS ROCHE has testified before a Senate committee that Bridges was paid $35,000 for his services for one year as trustee of the welfare fund. Bridges was quoted later as saying that this went for legal and other costs in connection with his duties as trustee. But the records, if produced in court, would show that one New York law firm designated by Bridges received a fee of $38,584.43. Legal and actuarial firms retained at Bridges' direction are reported to have been paid more than $100,000. Burke was then devoting most of his time to his duties as general counsel.

A lawsuit in which records would be subpoenaed could also be expected to show that Bridges' compensation from the miners' welfare fund totaled not $35,000 but $70,000. Bridges served as trustee from April, 1948, to April, 1950. He was paid at the rate of $35,000 a year up to September 23, 1949. The records after that date are not available.

As a result of their association in the welfare fund, Lewis and Bridges have formed a kind of political partnership. At any rate, Lewis is reported to have interested himself in the Republican primary contest in New Hampshire to the extent of contributing liberally to the campaign of J. Wesley Powell, Bridges' former administrative assistant, who is running against Senator Charles Tobey. New Hampshire voters go to the polls on Tuesday.

Lewis has on several occasions made generous use of UMW funds for campaign contributions. In 1936 he made nearly a half-million dollars available to F. D. R.'s campaign for re-election. Breaking with Roosevelt the following year and reverting to his traditional Republicanism, he made a Nation-wide broadcast denouncng Roosevelt and got his friend, the late William Rhodes Davis, oil promoter and international adventurer, to put up $55,000 to pay for it.

THERE IS a possibility that the Livengood suit will be joined also by a group of 275 welfare fund employes in Washington who were summarily dismissed by Lewis last October. They say they were given a half-hour notice with no severance pay although they were members of the UMW's District 50. District 50 is a kind of catchall for extending Lewis' activities into other fields than mining.

No other employer in the country in a unionized industry could treat his employes in that fashion. Nor could the head of any large corporation, comparable to the UMW, exert authority over the funds of his company without any check by the board of directors or the stockholders.

It would appear that very few men in American history, not excepting the days when the big tycoons were engaged in buccaneering careers, have exercised the kind of power Lewis wields. So far as can be determined, no UMW member has any vested or specified right, regardless of the tenure of his employment or his physical condition, in disability benefits or a pension. The decisions are made by the heads of the union locals. These are men invariably approved by Lewis and in many instances hand-picked by him.

Numerous complaints are reported to flow into union headquarters here, some of them anonymous, some signed. But again, so far as can be discovered, there is no proper channel for handling legitimate grievances. Livengood, who filed the suit, was fired from the union.

There is a third trustee, Charles A. Owen, theoretically representing the coal owners. But apparently all that he can do is watch the majority of two, Lewis and Miss Roche, go their own way. This is autocracy of the rawest and crudest kind and it certainly does the trade union movement no good.

Douglas Leads Floor Fight on M'Carran Bill

By Robert C. Albright

Post Reporter

Senate Administration forces yesterday opened a major attack on the McCarran Communist control bill, charging it would take six to nine years to catch a Communist under its "totally ineffective" registration provisions.

Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.) led the attack in a six-hour Senate speech urging the Administration's "Red internment" substitute as a speedy method of apprehending potential saboteurs in time of emergency "with the least possible danger to liberty."

He compared the catch-all McCarran bill with a "blunderbuss, which shoots off in so many directions at once that it is hard to tell whether it will hit real, or only imaginary enemies."

Hard Fight for Substitute

Senate sponsors of the substitute, empowering the Attorney General to intern Reds whenever the President and Congress declare an "internal security emergency" were still trailing badly in the race for votes with the McCarran bill, but these developments brought them more support:

1. FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's statement that he could close in 12,000 dangerous Reds on short notice helped point up arguments of Administration Senators that Communist "internment" if war threatens is the only effective route.

2. In a bid for Southern Democratic backing, proponents of the substitute offered to accept amendments banning picketing of courts and to toughen restrictions on deportable aliens along lines of the House-passed Hobbs bill.

President Truman's warning Thursday that he will not sign the McCarran bill meanwhile encouraged the Administration bloc to appeal for legislation Mr. Truman wouldn't veto. None of the compromise moves made much impact however on the large bloc of Senate Republican votes, previously committed to the Mundt-Ferguson Heart of the McCarran bill.

Hits Truman Stand

Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), chief sponsor of the sweeping omnibus bill requiring Communist-controlled organizations and members to register and picking up other legislation previously passed by the House, denounced Mr. Truman's statement as "the most colossal mistake." McCarran said the President's stand could lead to a Republican victory in November.

Senator Douglas aimed his fire at the McCarran bill provision requiring Communists and Communist front organizations to register.

He termed it "clumsy" in operation and said it will create such protracted delays that it will be ineffective in detaining or exposing Communists or in safeguarding the country against spies or saboteurs.

He said Communist organizations could and probably would use it to file false lists of members. To confuse the situation, he suggested they may list non-Communists and anti-Communists as members, "smearing innocent persons" and starting anti-Communists fighting each other.

Douglas also argued the McCarran provisions may be used to label innocent and basically patriotic organizations as communist fronts.

While the real communist targets resorted to endless legal delays permitted under the bill, dissolved old organizations and formed new ones, he said the Government would be caught in an endless game of "Going to Jerusalem."

The Illinois Democrat contended the substitute "Red internment" bill on the other hand will enable the President and the Attorney General to strike swiftly "at real dangers . . . instead of shadow-boxing."

Under the McCarran bill he said FBI Chief Hoover could not arrest the 12,000 he says are potential saboteurs, but the substitute would permit their detention before the outbreak of war. Unlike the McCarran bill he said it will still safeguard basic freedoms.

Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) clashed sharply with Douglas on the latter point. Cross-questioning the Illinoisan, Ferguson maintained the substitute "jails a man" in advance of court hearing or jury trial, and thus violates basic Constitutional guarantees.

Senator Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.) denied it would take 8 to 9 months to "catch up with a Communist" under the McCarran bill. Unless the Supreme Court granted a writ of certiorari on appeal, Mundt said the registration procedures could be completed in eight months.

Senator Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.) criticized the substitute's failure to provide for any checkmate against Communists prior to the declaration of an emergency, and complained it took no steps against "front" organizations.

Schoeppel to Call Witnesses In Red Probe of Interior Dept.

By The Associated Press

Senator Schoeppel (R., Kans.) yesterday demanded and won the right to call his own witnesses in an attempt to bolster his charges of Communist influences in the Interior Department.

Under Democratic fire as a GOP "hatchet man," Schoeppel said he will present documentary evidence next week to support his contentions.

Meanwhile, the Republican National Committee disowned any connection with Schoeppel's broadsides against Secretary of the Interior Chapman and others.

GOP headquarters said in a statement:

"No one at the Republican National Committee knew about the Schoeppel speech or what it contained until the address was made and appeared on the press association wires and in the newspapers."

Schoeppel, a freshman Senator, made his accusation in a speech on the Senate floor—and Thursday drew a challenge from Chapman to repeat the charges outside the halls of Congress where he would not be protected against a lawsuit.

Legal Immunity

Congress members are immune from legal action arising from remarks they make in the Senate or House.

In his testimony Thursday, Chapman told the Senate Interior Committee that Schoeppel's charges were "scandal-mongering and slander." The Cabinet member heatedly denied Schoeppel's assertion that he was linked to Communist-front groups and had failed to sign loyalty affidavits.

At yesterday's hearing, Committee Chairman O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) agreed to call Schoeppel's witnesses and gave the Kansas legislator until next Monday to submit a list of the persons he wants called. O'Mahoney called the original hearing to give Chapman an opportunity to reply to Schoeppel's charges.

Schoeppel showed a disposition to soften some of his original statements, terming them "probably a little strong," but said he expects to get more substantiating data from his administrative aide, Frank Bow, who is running for Congress in Ohio.

Yesterday's principal witness, Randolph Feltus, former $3000-a-month publicity man for Communist Poland, angrily denied Schoeppel's charge that he was "an agent for the Kremlin."

Schoeppel said in his Senate speech that Secretary Chapman and Gov. Ernest Gruening of Alaska were instrumental in getting Feltus hired as a $1500-a-month adviser to the Alaska Statehood Committee.

Feltus said that he quit his job with the Statehood committee after he heard "six or eight weeks ago" that he would be attacked in the Senate because of his work for the Polish Ambassador in Washington.

. . . denies charges

He said he worked for the Polish envoy from October, 1946, until late 1949.

Feltus testified he left his job with the Statehood committee to save the committee from embarrassment.

"My code of ethics is never to embarrass a client," he said.

The witness said he never committed a disloyal act while working for the Polish Ambassador, and his contract specified that he was expected to do nothing disloyal.

Chapman Invitation Withdrawal Is Denied

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Sept. 8 (AP).—The program chairman for the annual peace arch celebration said today the cancellation of Interior Secretary Oscar Chapman's announced appearance had nothing to do with Republican charges Chapman once had Communist leanings.

Dr. George N. Anderson of Lynden, Wash., the program chairman, was quoted yesterday by the Bellingham Herald as saying he withdrew an invitation to Chapman when Senator Schoeppel (R., Kans.) questioned the Secretary's record.

Today Anderson said he hadn't meant to give that impression. He said he had not cancelled the invitation, but that Chapman advised he was unable to fill the September 22 engagement because of other commitments.

Farm Union Charge Is Denied

By The Associated Press

An assertion by Senator Bridges, Republican, of New Hampshire, that Communists appear to have taken over the Farmers Union was promptly denied yesterday by the farm organization.

Senator Bridges told the Senate Thursday that Communists often have boasted that they had been successful in their efforts to take over the organization.

In Washington, the organization issued a statement in the name of President James G. Patton, calling Senator Bridges' charges "a lie" and saying "it is significant that the smear was mouthed from the immunity of the Senate floor." Senators cannot be sued for anything they say on the floor.

Senator Humphrey, Democrat, of Minnesota, replied to Senator Bridges, too. He called the speech "cheap politics" and said it contained "warmed over biscuits, same old junk, same old bunk."

In citing examples of what he said was pro-Communist activity by the Farmers Union, Bridges mentioned the Iowa Farmers Union.

He said the president of the Iowa group is F. W. (Fred) Stover and identified him as "one of the leaders of the Communist-dominated Progressive party."

Moreover, Bridges said the June 17 issue of the Iowa Union Farmer which he described as "Mr. Stover's paper," carried an appeal for signatures to the Stockholm peace petition. That petition, Bridges said, is "a Communist-inspired propaganda move."

Jewish New Year Will Be Greeted Monday

The Jewish New Year, 5711, will be greeted all over the world at sundown, Monday, the eve of Rosh Hashonoh.

According to the old tradition, it is the day when God inscribes in the Book of Life His judgment upon the actions of each person, and when everyone should pass judgment on his own life.

It is observed two days by Orthodox and Conservative Jews, and one day by Reform Jews.

With Rosh Hashonoh, Jews begin a period of 10 days of prayer and atonement which come to a climax on Yom Kippur, September 21, a day of fasting and worship which is the most solemn of the religious year.

Israeli government officials yesterday approached the Jewish New Year with a fresh plea for American help. Foreign Minister Mishe Sharett told an economic conference of 50 leading American businessmen and Jewish community spokesmen that it is "up to you to save us."

Israel's critical economic condition was the focal point of the conference. As an austerity gesture, the Israeli government has advised the heads of its offices not to send New Year's greetings this year.

In a New Year's message from Switzerland, where he is vacationing, President Chaim Weizmann called on all Jews to pray that the Korean fight will not explode into a global war.

In Washington and vicinity, 21 synagogues and organizations have planned services for the High Holy Days. As during the war years, the National Jewish Welfare Board has invited Jewish service personnel to special services in various congregations.

Rev. Hopson Institution Set Sunday

The Rev. Maurice Henry Hopson will be instituted as rector of the Church of St. Clement at a special ceremony Sunday at 4 p. m. in the church, 1701 Seminary rd., Alexandria.

Mr. Hopson

The Very Rev. Stanley Brown-Serman, dean of the Virginia Theological Seminary, will be the institutor. Seminary faculty and clergy of the area will join in the procession.

Following the institution, a reception will be held in the parish hall.

A native of New Haven, Conn., Mr. Hopson received his B. A. from Hobart College, and his B. D. from the Virginia Theological Seminary in 1942.

His rectorates include All Saints' Church, Brooklyn, Mich.; St. Andrew's Church, Maryville, Tenn.; and since 1945, simultaneously, Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Bristol, Va.-Tenn., and St. Thomas Church, Abingdon, Va.

Falls Church Set Back in Damage Suit

Fairfax Circuit Court Judge Arthur Sinclair ruled in effect yesterday that Falls Church will have to file a civil suit if it wants to collect damages it claims because of an injunction suit brought last month against the city.

The city appeared in court yesterday to request the damages, at a hearing originally scheduled on the injunction itself.

The temporary injuction was issued early in August, forbidding former City Manager Harry Wells from carrying out any official duties. However, Wells resigned as city manager shortly afterward and was replaced by present City Manager Roy S. Braden. Petitioners for the injuction subsequently asked that it be dismissed.

The injunction was requested by Councilman Samuel McCrary and four others.

New York Reds to Rally In 'Garden' Despite Ban

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (NYHT). The New York State Communist Party will hold a rally "for peace and the Bill of Rights" at Madison Square Garden on September 19 in spite of the Garden's recent ban against leasing its facilities to "subversive organizations," it was learned today.

Ned Irish, executive vice president of the Garden, explained that the lease with the Communist Party had been made before the ban was announced and therefore could not be legally broken.

Area Press Inspects Md. Road Work

Members of the Washington and suburban Maryland press yesterday looked over a number of Maryland roads, seeing results of the State's 200 million dollar five-year plan for its highways.

The sixth of seven all-day tours sponsored annually by the Maryland State Roads Commission, the inspection covered portions of southern Maryland, including Prince Georges, Charles and St. Marys Counties.

Highlight of the trip was a stop at the test area on a section of Route 301. 8 miles south of La Plata, where eight trucks with varying loads are rumbling back and forth over a blockaded-off portion of highway 1.1 miles long.

These trucks, with loads of concrete blocks, are testing the damage done a highway by different weights on different style trucks. The trucks have been running continuously since June 23, with a trip completed by each one every minute of the day.

The test is being conducted by the National Highway Research Board of the National Academy of Sciences and is sponsored by 11 State highway departments, the Department of Defense, and trucking, roads and petroleum associations.

This is the first test of its kind, and will be followed by five others for different type roads. The test road at La Plata is of steel reinforced concrete.

The newsmen, conducted by Joseph Chaney, district engineer, also inspected the Patuxent River bridge which will link Calvert and Charles Counties. Work on this project at Benedict, Md., was started on May 10 and is now 10 percent complete.

Heat-Measuring Device Promises Cancer-Study Aid

CHICAGO, Sept. 8 (U.P.).—A new heat-measuring device that can reflect temperature changes as slight as five-millionths of a degree promises to aid in cancer research, a Yale chemist reported today.

Dr. Julian M. Sturtevant told the 118th National Meeting of the American Chemical Society that the instrument, a calorimeter, can be used to investigate heat changes in body proteins.

"Cancer involves abnormal growth of certain body cells, the bulk of which is protein," he said.

Sturtevant said the calorimeter measures the total amount of heat produced, whereas a thermometer records merely temperature.

New Building For School Office Asked

Board of Education President C. Melvin Sharpe yesterday asked the District Commissioners to build a new central school administration building on the site of the old tuberculosis hospital at 13th and Upshur sts. nw.

The request, made in a letter to Commissioner John Russell Young, said the present administration building, the old Franklin School at 13th and K sts. nw., is "totally inadequate."

Sharpe cited deficiencies in the 75-year-old building that include a sinking third floor.

Robert H. Davis, director of building inspection, said that although the third floor has sunk nearly 3 inches, the building is safe for occupancy.

School personnel have been ordered to spread filing cabinets and heavy equipment to relieve the load on sections of the floor, Davis said. He pointed out the structure never had been intended for an office building and was not designed to take concentrated weight loads.

Sharpe said in his letter that the Franklin Building no longer is able to house all personnel needed to administer the expanded school system. Employes are scattered in 30 other buildings, he said.

Sharpe said that a new building could be constructed at 13th and Upshur without cost to the District for the purchase of a site.

The school board president also asked the Commissioners to consider the construction of a central school warehouse. Books and supplies currently are stored in old schools and suffer from dampness, he said.

Gary Teter, 18, of Allegany placed second in the tractor contest and Thomas Banks, 17, of Winimico County, was third.

Moreno Wins 1st Start for Nats, Trims Macks, 10-4

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Senor Julio Moreno, the Nats' newest cull from their Havana club, looked moderately tall and dark, and extremely handsome to Manager Bucky Harris last night. He broke into the majors with a 10-4 victory over the Athletics at Griffith Stadium.

Harris was viewing him not as a hunk of male beauty, but in terms of a kid pitcher who could get the ball over the plate. Walking nobody, Moreno had a shutout for seven innings until the A's tagged him all of their runs.

Noren Stretches Streak to 21

The Nats, incidentally, did nicely by Rookie Moreno, taking the pressure off by installing him in a 4-0 lead in the first two innings. They swatted three A's pitchers as if to achieve one hit for each of the 2726 fans in the park, but finally contented themselves with a 14-hit total.

It started out as a contest between a pair of rookie pitchers, Moreno, and Joe Murray, who came up to the A's out of the same Florida-International League. But Murray lasted only four innings and bequeathed a 6-0 deficit tot his successors.

Eventually, the A's did whack Moreno for 12 hits, but he was pitching hmiself out of trouble smartly in the early innings with a fast ball that hissed, and a curve that was catching the corners.

Sharing the honors with Moreno was Irv Noren, who sustained his own private hitting streak with a sixth-inning double to left center, his only hit of the night. It extended his record to 21 consecutive games.

Michaels Swats Triple

Johnny Ostrowski and Sam Dente drove in three runs for the Nats in the first inning, and Michaels whacked in another in the second. Michaels' triple to the right field corner was the big blow of a two-run seventh.

Carl Sheib was working for the A's when the Nats upped their lead to 9-0 with a three-run sixth. Mele's double off the left field wall was the pivotal blow of that session. Mele drove in their tenth run with a single to center in the seventh.

Lehner's triple in the eighth jolted Moreno out of his shut-out dreams, and in the ninth they banged him for three more runs on four more hits, only to fall a half dozen runs shy of tying the score.

IN SHORT . . . Bob Kuzava is fresh and ready for the invasion of the Yankees this afternoon. It will be a left-handed affair with Tommy Byrne pitching for the Yanks . . . Any little thing that Bucky Harris can contribute to the discomfort of the Yanks will be hogestly intended . . . Mickey Grasso, who has picked man after man off base this season, learned how it felt in the fifth inning last night. He was hoodwinked off second base by Billy Hitchcock who pulled the hoary hidden-ball trick on him . . . Hitchcocok claimed Yost as a similar victim earlier in the year.

Phils Halt Onrushing Dodgers, 4-3

Whiz Kids Boost Lead To 5½ Games

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8 (AP).—Philadelphia's league-leading Phillies choked off Brooklyn's desperate bid for a clean sweep of the four-game series, salvaging tonight's final, 4-3, to snap a five-game losing streak and increase their margin over the Dodgers to 5½ games.

Russ Meyer pitched six-hit ball for the Phils. Duke Snider socked a futile two-run homer for Brooklyn.

The Phils collected eight hits off Loser Erv Palica, half of them coming in the first inning to provide them with a 2-0 lead. Each team scored a run in the second. Thereafter, both pitchers settled down to hurl airtight ball.

The Phils picked up what proved to be the winning run in the sixth on Mike Goliat's one-bagger, Meyer's sacrifice and a double by Waitkus to take a 4-1 advantage. Duke Snider's homer in the eighth following a single by Pee-Wee Reese made it 4-3 and gave the 14,727 cash customers a scare. Meyer bore down, however, and retired the last four batters in succession.

It was the 27-year-old right hander's eighth victory against 11 defeats and his third in six decisions with the Dodgers. It marked the first time that Meyer had gone the route against Brooklyn this season.

Besides going down to defeat, the Dodgers also lost the services of Jackie Robinson.

The star second baseman sustained a bruised left thumb in making a fine stop of Jack Mayo's single behind second base in the first inning. After first aid, he continued in the game until the third but finally had to quit when the pain proved too severe.

Robinson was the second Dodger regular to be sidelined in the series. Catcher Roy Campanella was incapacitated last Wednesday with a dislocated right thumb when hit by a foul tip.

NCCA's Wilson Attacks Baseball's Campus Raids

CHICAGO, Sept. 8 (U.P.).—Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, commissioner of the Big Ten Conference and secretary-treasurer of the N.C.A.A., severely criticized organized baseball today for raids on college stars before they have completed their schooling.

Wilson wrote directly to Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler to air a long list of grievances against the major leagues.

His letter specifically cited the case of Bill Skowron, Purdue football and baseball player, who recently signed a bonus contract with the New York Yankees.

Redskins Get Quiet Welcome, But They Aren't Mad; They Remember Wondrous Nats

By Morris Siegel

The Redskins learned last night it takes at least a nine-game winning streak to receive a welcome in Washington.

The conquering pro footballers, who swept the five games on their coast-to-coast exhibition trek, arrived at National Airport with only two coaches' wives, one reporter, two Redskins officials and three airlines' representatives to greet them.

But they weren't mad. Matter of fact, they were happy. Most of the Tribe remembers the tumultuous greeting the Nats received in 1949 after they had won nine straight in the West.

The baseballers got a parade, three bands and the keys to the city from the District Commissioners. And the Nats finished eighth.

"Remembering what happened to the Nats that year, maybe it's a break that we came home unheralded," one member of the squad said as he slipped off to a waiting bus to be taken to the team's Annapolis Hotel headquarters.

The dinner-time arrival marked the end of a seven-week training session which began in Los Angeles July 16. Between then and last night, Coach Herman Ball and his braves have made pro football fans take notice.

The team voted the second least likely to succeed—Baltimore got top billing—had knocked off Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago Cards, Detroit and New York's Yanks.

Exhibition-wise, the unblemished record puts the surprising Redskins in the same class with the powerful Cleveland Browns, also unbeaten in five pre-season tests.

"Best training season we've had in five years," Coach Ball remarked. "We have no injuries to speak of, the squad's in fine mental condition, and, well, what else can I say?"

The revitalized pros, 37 strong, five over the legal limit, wound up their pre-season tests with a 24-7 success over the favored New York Yanks in Kansas City Thursday evening.

It was by far the squad's best performance. Tackle Paul Lipscomb, with a bruised leg to show for it, led a great defense which kept the Yanks scoreless until

Kiner, Noren Will Barnstorm With Jachym's All Stars

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (AP).—The most elaborate barnstorming tour of Major Leaguers, insofar as "name" players are involved, was announced today by John Jachym of Jamestown, N. Y., the sponsor.

The rosters include such leading National Leaguers as Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh; Sam Jethroe, Boston; Larry Jansen, Giant pitcher; Jim Konstanty and Puddenhead Jones, pitcher and third basemen of the Phillies, and American League standouts such as Vern Stephens and Walt Dropo of the Red Sox, Dizzy Trout of the Tigers, Irv Noren of the Senators, and Lou Brissie of the Athletics.

Jachym was 40 percent stockholder in the Nats before selling out recently to Gabriel Murphy of Washington, D. C.

Willie 'Wanted to Keep Fighting'

Saddler Hurt Him on Double Armlock in Seventh, Pep Says

By Ted Smits

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (AP).—Willie Pep, dethroned featherweight champion, complained tonight that Sandy Saddler "got me in a double arm lock at the end of the seventh round and twisted my arm."

Speaking without bitterness in his dressing room after he had been given an opiate to dull the pain caused by his partially dislocated left shoulder, Pep declared:

"I didn't feel any punch. I felt very good. I wanted to keep on fighting, because I thought I could lick him, but they wouldn't let me."

Saddler, the new champion, said:

"I knew something was wrong with him, but I didn't think it was his shoulder. I could see something was wrong after I hit him a shot to the kidney in a clinch. He couldn't come up again before the round ended."

Doctors worked on Pep for a half hour after the fight before newsmen were allowed in the dressing room. They found Pep seated on a rubbing table, his head in his hands, swathed in his bright red dressing gown.

"I knew it happened as soon as the bell rang," said Pep in a low voice. "I began to feel the pain going back to my corner.

"Up to then he only hurt me a few times. He tried to twist my arm a couple of times before the end of the seventh.

"I'll fight him anytime they let me—anytime."

Pep's left eye had a bad bruise beneath it and Pep said he got it when Saddler butted him.

Sandy Given KO in 8th After Willie Piles Up Lead

By Gayle Talbot

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (AP).—Willie Pep, a disconsolate little figure, lost the featherweight championship of the world to Sandy Saddler at Yankee Stadium tonight as he sat on his stool between rounds with a dislocated shoulder.

Apparently on his way to a one-sided victory over the skinny-legged Negro, the great little battler from Hartford, Conn., took a huge crowd of 35,000 completely by surprise when he failed to come up for the eighth round and Referee Ruby Goldstein raised Saddler's arm in token of victory.

Saddler thus regained the title he lost to Pep 19 months ago at Madison Square Garden after having previously dethroned Pep in October of 1948.

There was no hint that Pep was in difficulties when he returned to his corner after a rough seventh round. But he had no more than reached his stool when his manager, Lou Viscusi, beckoned Dr. Vincent Nardiello, official physician for the State Athletic Commission, into the ring.

The doctor still was leaning over examining the stricken fighter when the bell rang for the eighth round. It will go into the record as an eight-round knockout.

Just before the bell Pep's seconds unexpectedly called for Referee Ruby Goldstein. The crowd buzzed with curiosity and men began to pour into the brightly-lit ring that seemed full of moths circling in a blue haze.

Finally came the announcement that Pep could not continue and that a new featherweight champion had been crowned. It was something of an anticlimax.

Up to the time of the unhappy ending, Pep had piled up a commanding margin on points. On this writer's scoreboard he had won five of the seven rounds and dealt steady, stabbing punishment to the challenger.

Saddler's best round had been the third, when he dumped Pep to the floor with a hard left hook on the button. Pep stayed down for a nine count and came up to give better than he received for the remainder of the round. Saddler also earned the seventh round, but by a hair.

All the others had gone to Pep by handy margins, and it appeared to be only a question of whether his 28-year-old legs could carry him the remainder of the route at the stiff pace he was setting. He had left-jabbed Sandy into a partial state of bewilderment and had crossed a score of lusty lefts and rights to Saddler's jaw.

At the end Saddler's left eye was closing fast. Pep had a cut on his left cheek bone from which considerable gore spilled during the final round.

As the fight went on it became progressively rougher. Apparently angered at his inability to corner the dancing, jabbing Pep, Saddler wrestled him around enthusiastically in the sixth and seventh rounds, and it probably was in one of these tugging matches that Pep's shoulder unhinged.

Goldstein spoke severely to Saddler a time or two, telling him to cut the wrestling. Saddler's seconds, for their part, were shouting to Goldstein that he had better make Pep desist from jabbing his thumb in their man's eye or they would take measures.

In other words it was just beginning to look promising when the end came. It will never be known whether the little boxing master from Connecticut could have staved off Saddler's lunges for another eight rounds. Their weights were exactly even, 124¾, but Saddler had four years going for him and appeared stronger in the clinches.

While Saddler had scored the only knockdown up to the time the fight was stopped, Pep three or four times had registered more solid smashes than the new champion and at least once, in the sixth round, had him in trouble from a couple of hefty belts to the middle and a series of jolting hooks to the head.

Harry Markson, managing director for the International Boxing Club, said the crowd was about 38,500 and the gate close to $250,000. Official figures won't be available until tomorrow.

Doctor Calls Injury Shoulder 'Subluxation'

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. — Dr. Vincent Nardiello's official term for what happened to Willie Pep in his featherweight championship fight tonight with Sandy Saddler was a "subluxation" of the shoulder. The little fellow was unable to move his arm in any direction.

After he recovered sufficiently to talk with the writers, Pep said the injury occurred when "he got me in a double arm lock just before the bell and twisted me." He declared he was otherwise unhurt and asked to be permitted to continue.

Immediately after the fight Al Weill, matchmaker for the promoting International Boxing Club said the two are signed to meet for the fourth time in December. He said the contract for the return engagement was part of the agreement for tonight's show. Pep received 45 percent of the net from tonight's gate, Saddler only 15 percent.

Don Kolloway Scores Winning Run on Wertz's Hit in 9th

CHICAGO, Sept. 8 (AP).—Vic Wertz's ninth inning single scored Don Kolloway with the winning run as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Chicago White Sox, 3-2, before 17,742 persons tonight to move a half game ahead of New York's second-place Yankees in the American League pennant race.

Wertz's 116th run batted in helped Dizzy Trout best Bob Cain, Chicago southpaw, in a pitcher's duel. The veteran Detroit right hander gained his twelfth decision

Chicago picked up a run in the home half of the first. Nelson Fox reached second on Jerry Priddy's two-base throwing error after Chico Carrasquel was retired. Fox, who tagged up on Dave Philley's fly to Evers, scored when E. Robinson singled to left.

Braves Win, 4-3, on Holmes' 3-Run Homer

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (AP).—Tommy Holmes' home run, his seventh of the year, was the decisive blow today as the Boston Braves defeated the New York Giants again, 4 to 3. It was the thirteenth triumph for the Braves over the Giants in 18 games.

Holmes' blow came off big Jim Hearn in the seventh with Walker Cooper and Sid Gordon on base. Both had walked.

The defeat was the second in 10 starts for Hearn since joining the Giants in July and both have been by the Braves.

The Giants were baffled by Warren Spahn until the eighth when they got all their runs. Two walks and three singles ruined the southpaw's shutout. It was his eighteenth win.

Jack Lohrke played third base for the Giants, with Hank Thompson sidelined by an upset stomach. Lohrke's error on Cooper's grounder followed Earl Torgeson's triple for the Braves' first run in the fourth.

Browns Jolt Indians' Hopes, 5-4 and 6-0; Lemon Pounded

CLEVELAND, Sept. 8 (AP).—St. Louis severely hurt Cleveland's faint chances in the American League pennant race tonight by sweeping a double-header, 5-4 and 6-0.

The American League's only 20 game winner, Bob Lemon, had a rough time with the Browns in losing the second game. After he let them score one in the fourth, Ken Wood and Ray Coleman each slugged bases-empty home runs off him in the sixth.

In all, Cleveland pitchers made four miscues tonight. Lemon threw wild to the plate and Dick Weik threw a wild pitch in the second game. In the first game, Mike Garcia had one wild throw to second and a wild pitch. In every case, they aided Brownies scoring.

The Browns were aided to two runs in the first game when Garcia threw wild to second on a double-play ball. Sievers, who was on first then, got to third and Hank Arft to first. Singles by Stirnweiss and Don Lenhardt scored them.

St. Louis spotted Cleveland four runs in the first game's first inning on a double by Ray Boone, singles by Bob Kennedy, Larry Doby and Joe Gordon, and a walk to Al Rosen.

Sherm Lollar tied that game with an eighth inning homer. Stirnweiss, who walked, ran home from second in the ninth on Ken Wood's single for the winning run.

Snead Fires 65, but Still Trails Kroll by One at Reading

One Win in '49

Roosevelt High Figures To Improve

By Bill Gilbert

PETE LABUKAS is in an enviable position. Labukas, football coach at Roosevelt High, is almost a cinch to better his team's 1949 record—something a lot of coaches would like to do this year.

The Rough Riders won only one game last year—defeating Bell—and lost seven in Interhigh League competition. With more good ball players this year than last, Pete's chance of winning two games look pretty good.

Using the single wing, Labukas has one of his best 1949 passing backs returning in Left Halfback Bill Smith. Voted the outstanding baseball player in the Catholic Youth Organization League as a pitcher last year, Blond Bill throws the football as hard as the baseball.

Smith can let up and throw his soft ones just over the linemen well, too. And he's equally adept at throwing long and short aerials.

The power in the backfield will be furnished by Alva Griffin, out for football for the first time. Griffin, only in the second semester of his first year, is the hardest runner on the squad and should help the Rough Riders get that extra yard when they need a first down.

Labukas was faced with a shortage of centers but seems to be getting over that handicap nicely. He has switched George Burke, an end, to that position and Burke is filling in adequately.

Roosevelt's best end is Stanley Garfinkel, probably because Stan is a hard man to find. He is only 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 150 pounds. Garfinkel, though, gets high passes thrown his way by jumping—and catching—the ones that most ends would catch with comparative ease.

Heft on the line is provided by a 210-pound tackle whose name weighs almost as much as he does—Sava Toshondikidis.

Bill Nary's 64 Equals Course Mark

By Herb Altschull

READING, Pa., Sept. 8 (AP).—Long-driving Sammy Snead fashioned a 7 under par 65 today to ease to within one stroke of front running Ted Kroll in the hotly contested Reading Open Golf Tournament.

Snead tacked his 65 on to an opening round 68 to give him a 36 hole total of 133 after Kroll had come home with what looked like an insuperable 132, under par by 12 strokes.

It was nearly dark when Bill Nary, 6 foot 2 strong man from Chino, Calif., checked in with a brilliant 64 to equal the 18-hole standard for the course. Kroll had a 64 yesterday while Ben Hogan posted one in 1948.

Nary put together a 33 and a record-smashing back nine of 31 to add to his opening round of 74 for a 36-hole total of 138, six strokes off the pace.

Others still very much in the running were Glenn Teal, Jacksonville, Fla., third at 134; Ralph Blomquist, Glendale, Calif., and Jim Ferrier, San Francisco, tied for fourth at 137; Doug Ford, Briar Cliff, N. Y., tied with Nary for sixth, and Lloyd Mangrum, Niles, Ill., Jimmy Clark, Huntington Beach, Calif., and Shurck Klein, San Antonio, Texas, deadlocked at 139.

The field for the $15,000 plum was pared to the leading 60 players and ties tonight and the final 36 holes shaped up as an interesting duel between Snead, who specializes in long, booming drives and Kroll, whose putts through the first two rounds sometimes seemed super human.

Snead, the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., dandy, appeared to have regained his form on the 6456 yard course after a midsummer slump. He would have tied Kroll for the lead if he had dropped an eight footer on the 18th. The putt missed the pin by three inches.

Leading scores:

Ted Kroll	64	68—132

Ol' Talent Scout Rowland Can Tell 'Class' Without Program

Bo Rowland is surer than ever now that he knows talent when he sees it.

The other day, he scrimmaged his George Washington football team against the Quantico Marines.

The Colonials did okey, too, "except for one little ol' dinky-looking quarterback, who kept completing passes over our secondary," said Bo. "Our linemen couldn't stop him either.

"I called one of the assistant coaches aside and said, 'you know, that kid's gonna be a heckuva football player. I declare I haven't seen a guy pass like that since the Philadelphia Eagles-College All-Star Game in Chicago last month.'

"After the workout, I heard one of my boys say, 'That LeBaron is every bit as good as he's cracked up to be.'

Then I remembered: I had seen LeBaron pass the Eagles silly at Chicago, and this kid looked just like him. And I had read somewhere that LeBaron is in the Marines now.

"It restored my faith in me. I know now that I can still tell a good football player when I see one."

On The Wing Pays 12-1 at Timonium

TIMONIUM, Md., Sept. 8.—Getting the lead as Mrs. H. B. Donegan's Gay Beauty went wide on the first turn, Jules Gomez's On The Wing continued on to win the featured Mayor's Day purse and pay a profitable $26.80.

Before a crowd of 5423, On The Wing crossed the payoff line 4 lengths clear of Mrs. G. A. Saportas, jr.'s High Heart.

The latter was a head better than the tiring favorite Gay Beauty, with Mrs. D. S. Winchester's War Belle fourth, two and a half lengths to the rear of the third horse.

On The Wing was ridden by Colin Shaw and ran the 5 furlongs in 1:01 2/5 over a fast track under 114 pounds.

The Mayor's Day was a claiming affair for $2000 top and $1750 bottom sprinters and drew a field of eight. Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore was on hand to present a trophy, to Owner Gomez.

Gay Beauty broke first but raced wide at the first turn, taking out War Belle, Unaided, and Blue Cross. When this occurred, Shaw shot On The Wing up along the inside and the gelding was leading entering the backstretch. From there, he increased his advantage as High Heart came on to nab second from Gay Beauty.

Mike Sorrentinio, who rode five winners yesterday, came back with two more today to increase his lead as leading rider at this point. He now has 14.

Bill Bennings

Dear Folks:

As if this year's scramble for racing dates wasn't confusing enough, next year's schedule in this section should be even more difficult to arrange. One thing is certain, no matter which dates the Maryland and New Jersey tracks pick, Delaware Park will run from May 29 to July 4. Being a non-profit track, Delaware can buck any and all comers. William duPont and his man, Brian Field, are determined that Delaware will carry on regardless. Hagerstown and Cumberland hardly will try early meetings again next year. After all, half-mile racing is a warm weather, summer-time sport and is only successful if the minor Maryland tracks keep the continuity. Charles Town, as usual, will adopt a wait-and-see policy.—Bill.

This week, here in Washington, Acacia has been host to its top field representatives and branch office cashiers from all over the United States.

To these leading Acacia career men and women, who have earned the right to be here and participate in Acacia's Billion Dollar Jubilee, is due a large share of the honor and credit for Acacia's remarkable achievement in doubling its Insurance in Force in less than 7 years.

Believing that a policyholder is best served when his life insurance policy is "tailored" to his individual needs and serviced by one of our own trained representatives, Acacia has never reinsured any other company's risks or accepted group, brokerage or wholesale insurance of any kind whatsoever. Every dollar of Acacia's Billion Dollars of Life Insurance in Force has been sold on this unique basis by Acacia's own representatives on the lives of individual policyholders.

There are more than 600 life insurance companies in the United States. Only 25 of them have a Billion Dollars or more of Ordinary Life Insurance in Force. And of these 25, only Acacia has been built from the ground up, in one man's lifetime.

As a fitting climax to this great Billion Dollar Jubilee Week, these field and branch office representatives, together with every member of Acacia's Home Office staff, will gather tonight in the Main Ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel to celebrate this outstanding achievement and to receive from Acacia's Officers and Directors thanks for a job well done.

House Rider Makes All Classified Job Moves On Temporary Basis

All promotions, transfers, and reinstatements to classified jobs throughout the entire Government are now being made on a temporary basis, it was learned yesterday.

In fact, all such personnel transactions made for the past week are temporary despite contrary information given the employes involved.

This will be a shock to many people, but the entire personnel rider voted by the House two weeks ago is now the law of the land and it has been since September 2. It happened in a freakish sort of way and this is the story:

Two weeks ago today the House gave its approval to the 16-billion-dollar supplemental budget bill which carries the sweeping personnel rider. The Administration immediately launched a fight to kill the amendment as unnecessary, and argued that it would hamper defense recruiting.

Several defense agencies urged immediate Senate consideration of the budget bill, explaining they had immediate need for the money it provided. But the House was going on a short vacation and action on the bill was being held up in the Senate.

So, in order to make the needed funds available, the Congress passed a joint resolution which, for all practical purposes, makes the House bill effective until a final bill is agreed on. The President signed the resolution a week ago.

Legal eagles then argued for several days whether the personnel rider to the House bill was also in effect as of the day the resolution was signed.

The Civil Service Commission debated the problem and it agreed, too, that the rider is now law, but it hopes it's only a temporary law. Anyway, it drafted a memo to be sent to all Federal agencies to inform them of the new personnel restrictions. These are among the other provisions of the rider:

It directs the Civil Service Commission to make full use of its authority to make temporary appointments; forbids any employe who was laid off to be appointed, transferred or promoted to a job of a grade higher than the one he held on September 1; directs Federal agencies to certify the names of all laid-off employes to the Defense agencies for jobs they can qualify for—but at salaries and grades not to exceed those held at the time they were laid off—and it gives the Defense Department the power to requisition employes from other Federal agencies.

Silver Spring Man Of 35 Succumbs; 5 of New Victims Are From District

Eleven new cases of infantile paralysis and the fifth polio fatality this year, a 35-year-old Silver Spring man who died Monday at Gallinger Hospital, were reported yesterday in Greater Washington.

The death of Allen H. Davis, 704 Orange dr., Silver Spring, was listed as due to polio by the Montgomery County Health Department.

General manager at the Brockway Motor Co., Hyattsville, Mr. Davis was stricken last Saturday, just a month after he and his family moved into a new bungalow he had built. He died two days later, and was buried Thursday in Arlington Cemetery.

A native of North Carolina, Mr. Davis came here 25 years ago with his parents. He was an Army veteran of World War II.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Virginia M. Davis, three children, Lora Ann, 7; Paul, 5, and Roberta, 7 weeks; a son by a previous marriage, Allen E. Davis of Baltimore; a step-son, Robert Wakeham, 16; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen C. Davis of Brookmont, Md.; two sisters, Mrs. Ray Anderson, of Manasquan, N. J., and Mrs. Wilfred Ringer of Boston, and a brother, Paul Davis of Brookmont.

Five Cases in District

Of the 11 new polio cases reported yesterday, five were in the District. They were: a 20-year-old woman from the 100 block of 6th st. ne., admitted to Gallinger Hospital yesterday; a 6-year-old boy, from the 400 block of New York ave. nw., admitted to Children's Hospital Thursday; a 5-year-old boy from the 200 block of 37th st. se., admitted to Children's Hospital Thursday; a 28-year-old man from the 200 block of Rock Creek Church rd. nw., admitted to Mt. Alto Hospital last Saturday, and a 7-year-old girl from the 3800 block of Brandywine st. nw., admitted to Children's Hospital Thursday.

Montgomery County reported two new cases: a 3-year-old boy from the 100 block of Argyle st., Rockville, admitted to Walter Reed Hospital Sunday, and a 4½-year-old girl from the 4800 block of Chevy Chase blvd., Chevy Chase, Md., admitted to Children's Hospital Thursday.

Alexandria reported one new case: A 20-year-old man from the 3800 block of Old Dominion blvd., admitted to Mt. Alto Hospital August 18 and since released. A 22-year-old woman from the 5400 block of 8th rd. S., admitted to Gallinger Hospital Thursday, was the new case reported by Arlington County.

The District has reported 109 polio cases so far this year, Montgomery County 39; Prince Georges County 47; Alexandria 10; Fairfax County 34, and Arlington County 20.

Bridegroom Injured in Accident Is Wheeled In For Wedding Ceremony at Arlington Hospital

Strains of the wedding march drifted through Arlington Hospital's corridors yesterday as a young couple who wouldn't let a motorcycle accident interfere with their plans exchanged vows.

Suffering from serious head and back injuries, the 24-year-old bridegroom, Weldon W. Mauck, was wheeled in bed to the flower-decked doctor's lounge for the 6 p. m. ceremony.

His 20-year-old bride, Miss Harriet Mapel, stood by his side in the formal lace and tulle bridal gown she expected to wear last Sunday in a church wedding at Avalon, Pa.

Plans for her home-town wedding went awry when Mauck was injured August 31 in an accident at S. Monroe st. and Columbia pike. But as soon as doctors gave their consent, the couple decided to hold the wedding yesterday.

As for a wedding trip—that's still in the future. "They won't even give me an estimate on how long he has to stay in the hospital," says the bride.

Yesterday's simple ceremony was performed by the Rev. Howard Gabhart, Arlington Presbyterian minister, in a setting concocted with the help of "everybody" at the hospital. Flowers were everywhere, courtesy of some kindly, anonymous, Arlington florists.

One near crisis was averted when a frantic search through Washington music stores finally produced a disc of the wedding march, which later was wafted gently into the lounge from a victrola hooked up in the X-ray room.

The couple, who met last January 17 when both worked for a Washington moving company, will live at 1701 S. Monroe st., Arlington. Mauck now works for an Arlington transfer company. His bride is in charge of the cable unit at the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organizaton.

1627 New Polio Cases in U. S. During Week

The Public Health Service reported yesterday new polio cases in the country during the week ending September 2 totaled 1627.

The total showed a 0.6 percent increase over the 1617 cases reported the previous week and marked the fifteenth consecutive week of increase, according to the report. The total was far lower, however, than that of the corresponding week in 1949, when 3193 new cases were reported throughout the country.

The District reported 15 new cases during the week as compared with seven new cases during the same week of 1949. Montgomery County reported four new cases as compared to three in the same week in 1949 and Prince Georges County reported eight cases as compared with two for the same week in 1949. Fairfax and Arlington Counties reported two new cases each during the week, while Alexandria had one.

The Nation as a whole has shown a decided decrease in the number of cases reported through September 2 of this year—13,490—as compared to the number for the same period last year—23,724.

Washington, however, had more than double the number of cases reported through September 2 this year—101—as compared to the number over the same period last year—48.

Montgomery County reported 33 cases through September 2 as compared to 17 for the same period last year, while Prince Georges County reported 41 this year through September 2 as compared to 34 for the same period last year.

Comparative figures for nearby Virginia were: Alexandria 8 and 8; Fairfax County 28 and 8, and Arlington County 16 and 11.

Lane a Tool of E. Brooke Lee, 2 Others, Mahoney Charges

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 8 (AP).—George P. Mahoney, the governor's principal opponent for the Democratic nomination, today charged the Lane administration is a ring of political bosses.

He cited E. Brooke Lee, Montgomery County political leader, William C. Walsh in Western Maryland and James H. (Jack) Pollack in Baltimore as among those who "dictate to the present administration."

"If I am elected governor," declared Mahoney, "I will be a free governor. I won't have people of that sort dictating to me."

Five candidates for governor appeared at luncheon to make short speeches before the League of Women Voters.

Governor Lane said his administration has been responsible for great strides in the fields of public education, highway construction and the care of the mentally and physically ill.

Would Name Bridge for Heroes

"If we are to preserve our way of life," he said, "we must continue to provide decent things and not lose our willingness to help those in trouble."

Lane said he proposes to name the State's big bridge across Chesapeake Bay in honor of Maryland war heroes and veterans.

His statement came after another candidate for Governor in the September 18 primaries charged him with being unfair to Gold Star mothers because he had failed to appoint a war memorial commission.

Herbert Larabee, retired naval officer from Glen Burnie, declared he had spent 25 years trying to preserve the principles of democracy. He urged that voters "throw the political machine and the bosses overboard" and institute "a Government for the people and by the people."

McKeldin Also Appears

Stephen Peddicord, Baltimore's perennial candidate for some office or other, voiced the charge that Lane has been unfair to the mothers of Maryland's war dead.

Introduced with the Democrats was Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin, former mayor of Baltimore, who is the only Republican candidate and faces no primary contest.

McKeldin said he is unable to state his position on many questions at this time because it will depend on the platform adopted by the Republican state convention after the primary.

Unhappy Patients Moved From Spring Grove Barn

BALTIMORE, Sept. 8 (AP).—A rickety old barn at Spring Grove State hospital, partly burned away, became an issue today in the primary election contest between Governor Lane and George Mahoney.

As the result, five patients at the mental institution on the west outskirts of Baltimore, were moved out of the barn into a regular ward.

Dr. Isador Tuerke, acting superintendent at Spring Grove, indicated the five are probably going to be unhappy about it. He explained that their special quarters are much envied by other patients.

Dr. Tuerke ordered them returned to wards because there "is some possibility of a fire."

Mahoney, who seeks to wrest the Democratic gubernatorial nomination from Lane, charged yesterday that letting the patients sleep in the charred old barn endangered their health and safety.

The dairy barn was equipped with sleeping quarters for nine when it was built in 1914. The quarters have lights and plumbing. The walls and ceilings are plastered.

Five patients have lived there for 11 years now.

About 18 months ago one end of the barn burned. The fire did not get to the living quarters at the opposite end but they were damaged by water. The five patients had to be moved into regular wards while repairs were made.

Dr. Tuerke said they resented having to leave the barn then.

Senate 'Tap' Unit to Hear Grunewald

Decision Announced After Two-Minute Session at Capitol With Former Boxer

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

The Senate subcommittee investigating police wire tapping here yesterday had a two-minute session with Henry W. (The Dutchman) Grunewald, and promptly announced a full-dress hearing with the witness at 10:30 a. m. Monday.

Earlier Senate testimony reportedly named Grunewald as the intermediary between Police Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon, an admitted wire tapper, and the Senate War Investigating Committee during its probe into Howard Hughes' wartime contracts. Shimon has denied his wire tapping activities concerned the Hughes inquiry.

Before Grunewald was sworn, his attorney, William Power Maloney, testified behind closed doors for more than an hour.

Once With Justice Dept.

Maloney was formerly assistant to the head of the Justice Department criminal division and was counsel to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee's 1940 wire tapping probe.

Acting Chairman Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) said Maloney was called because he had been referred to as the man who had introduced Grunewald and Lieutenant Shimon.

Maloney, according to the Senator, said he has known Grunewald several years and had represented him in other cases not connected with the subject of the current inquiry.

Grunewald again categorically denied he has participated in wire tapping or had any knowledge of eavesdropping activities here.

Grunewald, a trim, 58-year-old former boxer, former FBI agent and onetime investigator for Pan American Airways, appeared at the Capitol flanked by two other attorneys.

They were Max Halperin of New York, and Edward A. Martin of Washington.

Before the brief hearing got under way Grunewald shed some, but not much, light on his occupation and recent whereabouts.

The FBI, supposedly on his trail the last three months, served a subpena on him Wednesday afternoon in a farmhouse at The Plains, Va.

Maloney Talks

Grunewald remained silent, smiling pleasantly. Maloney did the talking.

"What does your client do for a living?" a reporter asked.

"He is a gentleman, a citizen," Maloney replied.

"Well, what is his occupation?"

"He is a confidential investigator," said Maloney. "Or a public relations man if you want to say that."

He said he lived at the Virginia farm about 5 or 6 weeks, explaining he suffered an illness called diavaliculitis and had been ordered by his doctor to take a long rest.

Kefauver told reporters Maloney asked that the Monday hearing be open to the public. The Senator said that decision would be left to Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) who will preside over the inquiry on his return to Washington Sunday night.

Candidate Markey Speaks

D. John Markey, Republican candidate for United States Senator from Maryland, will speak at a gathering at the Masonic Hall in Laurel at 8 p. m. Wednesday.

In Mock Battle

Constitution Again Beats Enemy Ship

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

The ghost of "Old Ironsides" sailed again last night—in the Tidal Basin.

In a spectacular recreation of the first important naval victory in the War of 1812, the USS Constitution again defeated the British frigate Guerriere.

More than 300 persons sat on the steps of the Jefferson Memorial and watched the 23-foot replicas go through the identical maneuvers traced by the warships 730 miles east of Boston 138 years ago.

Under full battle sail and firing guns armed with black powder, the ships fought for 30 minutes, brilliantly lighted by Army search lights.

The mock battle was staged by the Navy Department and the Naval Gun Factory under the auspices of the National Sesquicentennial Commission.

The new "Old Ironsides" is a surplus motor whaleboat, built to exact scale by Comdr. Carl M. J. Von Zielinski. The "Old Ironsides" is moored to a pier in Boston, saved from the scrap heap by the pen of Oliver Wendell Holmes in 1820, and again by the pennies of school children 100 years later.

The two ships started their battle last night near the 14th st. bridge, while Lieut. George H. York broadcast a blow-by-blow description of the historic battle.

The illusion of reality was broken only by the brilliance of the Washington Monument, the headlights of parked cars, and the occasional sound of the four cylinder engines on the Constitution and Guerriere.

In history, a good part of the battle was fought at night, a battle of seamanship between Captain Isaac Hull, USN, and the British captain, Dacres.

The crowd roared approval last night as the battle ended when the masts of the Guerriere crashed into the Tidal Basin, and the British ship, her guns silent, drifted quietly.

The mock battle will be repeated tonight at 8:30 and again on September 22 and 23.

Whisky Mash, Still Revealed By NE Blaze

A trash fire in the basement of 508 25th pl. ne. led firemen and police to a whisky still and more than 400 gallons of mash yesterday at 9:30 p. m., police said.

Answering a local alarm, members of Engine Company No. 10 found a brick and cement cooker, 25 feet of copper tubing and laundry tubs to catch the brew, according to their report.

Police said nobody was home at the time of the unscheduled raid. In fact, they said, the distillers had apparently left in a hurry when an explosion in the still set off the trash fire after only four gallons of mash had been made.

Police poured kerosene in the eight barrels of mash, seized the burner and coils and punctured the cooker.

Police Find 500 Gallons of 'Corn'

Police raided a garage at O'Neal's ct. near 2d and G sts. sw. shortly after noon yesterday and found a homemade still and 500 gallons of corn whisky.

Acting on an anonymous phone call, members of Lieut. Roy E. Blick's Vice Squad found in addition 1500 empty half-gallon jugs, indicating a large volume of business.

No arrests were made, but a crowd gathered to see the whisky whisked off to headquarters.

D. C. Guard Battalion Gets Farewell From Relatives at Train; Going to Michigan

The 163d Military Police Battalion of the District National Guard left Washington yesterday for Camp Custer, Mich., and active duty.

The MPs marched from the Armory at 20th and East Capitol sts., to 3d st. and Eckington pl. ne., where they entrained.

Wives and relatives, one an 8-week-old child, for the most part missed brief ceremonies at the Armory and missed the parade to save their goodbys for the railroad station.

The 163d is the third unit of the D. C. National Guard ordered to Federal duty. It was activated September 3, six weeks after returning from two weeks training at Fort Miles, Del.

Lieut. Col. George O. Weber, business manager of the University of Maryland, is the commanding officer.

In other manpower developments 11 enlistees were recruited in Washington by the Air Force yesterday.

The Army reported six new men enlisted, with nine others qualified for future enlistment.

The Marine Corps enlisted three men and accepted two others for future enlistment, out of a total of 16 applicants.

D. C. Employe Fined in Assault On Md. Woman

A District Health Department employe was fined $60 yesterday in Marlboro Police Court on two charges brought by a woman who testified he molested her on a nearly-deserted road just after midnight last Saturday.

The defendant, Robert F. Wilson, 25, of Waldorf, Md., was found guilty by Trial Magistrate Robert W. McCulough of assault and battery and disorderly conduct.

The complainant, Mrs. Ernestine Whomble, 19, of 2405 Colebrook dr., Hillcrest Height., said the incident occurred as she and a woman friend were walking on Branch ave. near Naylor rd.

Wilson denied the incident occurred, although admitting he drove past the spot on his way home from his fiancee's home.

Driver Accused

3 Sailors Hurt as Car Hits 2 Trees

Three sailors from the Anacostia Naval Receiving Station were injured yesterday at 1:15 a. m. when their automobile swerved to avoid another car, bounced off a tree and hit a second tree at 17th and L sts. ne., police said.

RM/3C William C. Graham, 20, driver of the auto, was charged with driving at an unreasonable speed.

RM/3C Henry Latimer, 32, suffered face cuts, broken teeth and possible fractured right hip and shoulder. S/1C Earle W. Campbell, 20, received possible fractured ribs and a back injury. Graham was not seriously hurt.

All wer treated at Casualty Hospital and transferred to Bethesda Naval Hospital.

In another accident, Mrs. Sarah T. Craig, 55, of 2328 Huidekoper pl. nw., suffered a fractured left leg when she was struck by a taxi backing out of a parking space at Wisconsin ave. and W pl. nw., police said.

George G. Westcott, 30, of 2124 H st. nw., driver of the cab, was charged at the Seventh Precinct with backing without caution. Mrs. Craig was admitted to Georgetown Hospital in fair condition.

The House District crime investigation subcommittee will resume "unsensational" public hearings next week.

Committee aides announced the first session will begin at 10 a. m. Monday. They will continue through Wednesday.

Chairman James C. Davis (D., Ga.) has served notice re-activation of his committee will not take any sensational tangents. The purpose of the group, he has insisted, is to improve the efficiency of local law enforcement agencies and to stiffen penalties on repeater criminals.

The list of the first witnesses was unavailable last night. Officials of the United States Commissioners' office, the District Coroner's office and possibly Juvenile Court are expected to be among the first to be heard.

The Davis group may also examine Police Superintendent Maj. Robert J. Barrett's report on crimes committed and their disposition during the year ended last June 30.

Last open hearings of the crime committee ended early last spring in a public row between Barrett and Police Capt. Anthony Richitt.

5 Trust Firms Get Status of Banks on Tax

Five Washington trust companies have been put on the same footing as local banks, so far as gross-earnings tax liability is concerned.

The Board of Tax Appeals yesterday announced this decision disposing of the last of a series of appeals by local State-chartered and national banks and trust companies.

The Board said the trust companies are entitled to deduct interest paid to their depositors, and that the gross earnings must be taxed at four percent.

The appeal of the banks came after District Assessor Edward A. Dent had refused to allow the interest deduction, and had applied a 6 percent gross earnings tax.

The board said the trust comlost in their contention that they were entitled to deduct maintenance of real estate expenses, among others, in determining gross income.

The five trust companies claimed refunds of about $250,000 because of the higher tax rate, but the board, in deciding the case, said the amount of refunds will be "considerably less" than the amount claimed, and will not be determined exactly until it is computed.

Anderson Held In Slaying of Wife in Auto

A coroner's jury yesterday held William J. Anderson, 59, for the grand jury in the murder of his estranged wife, Mrs. Laura M. Anderson, 47, of 336 18th st. ne.

Mrs. Anderson was found slumped over the wheel of her car, a bullet wound in the back of her head, at 11th and C sts. ne., shortly before noon last Saturday. Anderson was arrested about 12 hours later in a Southeast park.

The jury deliberated 20 minutes before finding him responsible for his wife's death. He did not take the stand.

Police testified that at the time of his arrest and during later questioning, Anderson, who roomed at 915 11th st. ne., admitted firing the fatal bullet from a .38-caliber revolver which he left on the front seat of the car.

Policeman Says He Confessed

Pvt. Charles C. Mahoney of the Eleventh Police Precinct, said that on the way from the park to the precinct after his arrest, Anderson asked why he had been picked up. When he was told it was because he reportedly had had an argument with his wife earlier that day, Anderson replied, according to Mahoney:

"Yes, that's right. I shot the hell out of her."

Anderson told him, Mahoney continued, that he was down and out and trying to get a job. When he asked his wife for some money, she said she'd "be damned before she gave him a nickel," Mahoney quoted Anderson as saying.

He said the defendant told him he bought the gun "to shot his wife" while returning recently from Florida by train. Anderson said he paid $30 for it, according to Mahoney.

Detective Sergt. Robert E. Talbot, of the homicide squad, who tioned Anderson, quoted him as saying of his wife:

"Took Everything I Had"

"She took everything I ever had—my car, my house, the furniture—and then she kicked me out."

Talbot said Anderson told him he took the gun with him when he met his wife last Saturday because "he knew he had to kill either her or himself."

After shooting her, Anderson said he walked around the block, stopped at the house of a friend, wrapped the gun in newspaper, returned to the car and threw the gun on the front seat, according to Talbot. Then Anderson said he walked around some more and returned a second time to the car. When he found his wife still there, he called police and left the scene, Talbot said.

Present at the inquest was the Andersons' son, William J. Anderson, jr., 23, of Decatur Heights, Md., who conversed at length with his father but did not testify. Anderson who is being held without bond, was returned to District jail.

Robert B. Williamson Is Groom

Miss Kuter Wed on Parents' Anniversary

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

A CHARMING bit of sentiment was a feature of the wedding yesterday of Miss Roxanne Kuter and Robert Burns Williamson.

The bride chose the wedding anniversary of her parents, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Laurence Sherman Kuter, for her own bridal day and she cut her wedding cake with her father's sabre which had been used at her parent's ceremony 23 years ago.

Yesterday's ceremony was held at 5 p. m. in the post chapel at Fort Myer, and the reception was in the garden of the Kuter's quarters at Andrews Air Force Base. Chaplain Luther Miller, former Chief of Chaplains, read the service and General Kuter, commandant of the Military Air Transport Service, gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride's gown was of heirloom Chantilly lace made in redingote fashion with satin panels and a long train fanning out over a satin underdress. She wore her mother's wedding veil of rose point and French illusion and carried her great grandmother's prayerbook bound in the satin of her mother's wedding dress and covered with a brace of white orchids and a shower of lilies of the valley.

Attendants were Miss Edith Meyer of Chappaqua, N. Y.; Miss Sandra Sweet of Binghamton, N. Y., and Miss Pan Smith of Lakeville, Conn. Junior bridesmaids were Cathleen Lyddon of Rockford, Ill., and Rosellen Engstrom of Mankato, Minn., both cousins of the bride. Malcolm Wallace of Dallas, Tex., and Washington performed the duties of best man. Ushers were Robert White and Pete H. Tumlinson of New York; Robert L. Tate of Baltimore and George H. Schwarz, Jackson Heights, N. Y.; Lieut. Norman Green and William A. Maxwell, Washington; William Arntz of Silver Spring, Md., and Capt. Arthur McCrea, USAF, Washington.

After a brief wedding trip Mr. Williamson and his bride will live at 1545 Mount Eagle pl., Alexandria, Va. They will go to Texas in December. The bride is a graduate of the National Cathedral School and attended Smith and Goucher Colleges.

Mr. Williamson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hood Williamson of Alexandria, attended Texas A. and M., the University of Texas, and George Washington University. He is an administrative trainee in the Rural Electrification Administration.

'Eye Cue' Soars With Expert Make-up

By Ann Lawrence

(Seventh day of Margaret's beauty program)

AMPLE REST and a well-balanced diet go farther towards making your eyes clear and sparkling than all the cosmetics in the world. Add the habit of reading only in a good light, plus a few simple exercises to rest your eyes when they are tired, and anyone's "eye cue" is bound to soar upward.

But make-up can make your eyes seem larger and brighter, the lashes longer and curlier, the brows smoother. And eye make-up for evening wear is good taste today for the college girl, provided she uses it carefully.

In Margaret's case, as with many redheads, her brows and lashes were pale and colorless. Her pretty blue eyes had no frame; hence they seemed smaller, almost lost in her face.

Her brows needed grooming and brushing, not plucking, for they arch naturally into a perfect wing shape.

In the picture above right, Margaret uses a toothbrush, dipped first in vaseline, to coax her brows into shape. Starting at the inside corner, she brushes each little hair up and out.

Each Hair Colored Separately

THEN WITH a light brown eyebrow pencil, she makes deft little strokes, following the line of the brows. She learned that she must never use one hard line across her brows. Each individual hair must be colored, separately, if they are to look natural. At the ends of the brow, she must be careful not to make a downward slant, which makes any face look old and tired, nor a sharp upward curve, which looks stage-y. The line should end in an easy slope, fading off at the edges. With the tip of her little finger, Margaret smoothed off the excess coloring until it was impossible to see any added lines.

Next, using the same old standby, the toothbrush, she pushed the little hairs back into a smooth line. Again using the toothbrush, she found that by brushing her lashes with vaseline, they appeared much longer, helped to bring her eyes into more prominent focus.

For daytime and campus wear, this is all the make-up she needs.

More Eye-Cue for Glamor

BUT FOR formal occasions, when glamour is the password, a brown mascara, and a hint of blue-gray eyeshadow, blended from the center of the lid up and out, fading off into nothingness, will give her face fresh appeal and sparkle.

In the second photograph, Margaret takes a lesson in applying mascara. She learns that it is applied to the upper lashes only, from the roots to the tips.

Here are the rules: Start with a clean brush, always. Dampen it slightly, then rub it briskly over the mascara until the brush is quite full. Now, holding the corner of your eye taut, as illustrated, look upward. Work from the outside corner of the eye in, for you want the heaviest coat on the outside lashes to give them an upswept effect. Work from the roots to the tips of the lashes. Let the mascara dry for just a second, while you apply it to the other eye. Then dry your brush and go back and separate each lash, one from the other. The dry brush, stroked upward, accomplishes this with no fuss and bother.

Reducing Now Reduced To Matter of Science

By Ida Jean Kain

REDUCING TODAY is no hit-or-miss affair. The menus can be planned so exactly that every nutrition essential, with the exception of calories, can be supplied abundantly. All this adds up to safe reducing. As a matter of fact, a scientifically planned, low calorie menu is likely to provide better nutrition than the menus on which you gained too much weight. That's because care is taken to include every nutrient needed for repair or wear and tear, plus sufficient tissue-building materials and the body regulators needed for smooth running. That way, excess body fat is used for energy but body tissue is protected.

IDA JEAN KAIN

Yesterday, the importance of protein foods was stressed—not merely having sufficient protein, but having a complete protein food at every meal, including breakfast. On this reducing routine, you must eat breakfast. Look at it this way . . . you'll lost weight faster on breakfast!

Now to burn the body fat clean . . . we'll put science to work on that score. It's done with carbohydrates (sugar and starch). Since you know that sugar makes fat, it's difficult to appreciate the necessity of having some carbohydrate in a reducing diet. But when a small amount of carbohydrate is included in a low calorie menu, the tissue burned is chiefly fatty tissue. Then too, protein tissues are spared and acidosis is avoided. That's exactly what is wanted . . . to burn fatty tissue and avoid acidosis.

Of course to keep the calories below the number used daily, in order to force the body to draw on stored fat, the amount of carbohydrate must be limited. But the small amount included in our scientific menu is needed . . . a small baked potato, 2 or 3 thin slices of bread, liberal quantities of low calorie vegetables and fruits, and milk. These foods also provide other essential nutrients. In a very low calorie menu, a food is not included unless it provides its full share of protection.

Now you'll ask, "Where do we cut calories?" By cutting fats, for the body can get along best without food fats. Here again the protective nutrients are taken into account, and for the most part the fats which are cut are those furnishing calories only . . . such as gravy, fat of meat, salad oils and such. The dairy fats—milk, butter, cheese and cream—furnish vitamin A, but these foods must also be restricted if calories are to be kept low enough for reducing.

The limited vitamin A intake can be made up through the liberal use of greens, liver and meat organs, but since this dietitian cannot be sure you include these foods, I routinely suggest a vitamin concentrate. These capsules furnish vitamins without calories. One furnishing vitamins A and D is sufficient, but since the other vitamins can be purchased for no more money, it seems best to stipulate a multiple vitamin concentrate.

Ask the druggist for any brand furnishing normal amounts of all the vitamins. Do not let him sell you a high potency vitamin that is more expensive . . . you do not need it.

The fast-safe reducing diet is high in protein, restricted in carbohydrate, low in fat and reinforced with a vitamin capsule.

Capital Store Sales Off 3% During Week

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington department store sales in the week ended September 2 were 3 percent below the like 1949 period, the Federal Reserve Board of Richmond reported last night.

This was the first local year-to-year decline since the Korean war started. Merchants here were uncertain as to whether it indicated the start of a downtrend in reaction to previous overbuying.

For the four weeks ended September 2, local store sales remained 9 percent higher than the year-ago level.

Regionally, he Fifth Reserve District as a whole showed a 1 percent dip in sales for the week.

More seasonal weather this week and preschool buying are expected to bring sales to a more satisfactory level. In the week ended September 2, merchants recalled, weather was uncomfortably humid and hot.

SHARP GAIN: Interest in meat packing issues Friday was apparently touched off by a spectacularly good earnings report issued by Armour & Co. For the quarter ended July 29 Armour reported net profit of $3,508,000, compared with net profit of $170,579 in the like 1949 period. For the 39 weeks ended July 29 the company earned $12,892,000. In the comparable period a year early Armour reported a loss of $6,342,055.

ODD LOTS: A group headed by Bear, Stearns & Co., offered $14,500,000 of bonds of Delaware River Joint Bridge Commission. The 2.30 percent, 34-year bonds are priced to yield 2.25 percent . . . Lead prices went up another cent a pound to 16 cents, the fourth increase since July 13 . . . August orders for new freight cars totaled 24,280, exceeded only by the 30,065 cars ordered in July this year . . . Auto output this week is estimated at 142,631 units, sharply off from the previous week but accounted for by the Labor Day holiday and the absence of overtime in all plants . . . Ten thousand silver dollars were shipped yesterday by American Security & Trust Co. to Wildwood, N. J., for use at a pilots convention.

INCREASE: Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., yesterday reported August sales of $3,798,538, a gain of 2 percent over the like 1949 period. For the first eight months, sales aggregated $29,710,044 for a dip of 1.8 percent under the similar period a year ago. Treasurer W. H. Churchill said the chain operated 141 stores last month, against 142 in August, 1949.

BLUE-CHIP LIST: The new Cafritz Building at 1625 I st., nw., is nearing completion and first tenants are scheduled to move in during November and December. Among nationally known corporations which have leased space are 11 divisions of General Motors, Continental Can, Bell Aircraft, Butler Manufacturing, Ebasco Services, Western Electric, Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line, Standard Vacuum Oil, Great Lakes Carbon and Raymond Concrete Pile.

SENDOFF: "None of the productive might of America which you will see was financed and built for war purposes." That's what Earl Bunting, managing director of the National Association of Manufacturers, told some 60 engineers and technicians from 25 countries who Sunday will begin a 2500-mile tour of United States industrial plants. Bunting spoke at a sendoff luncheon yesterday in the Hotel Carlton. "In this country," Bunting emphasized, "people don't invest in or build war plants."

Arlington Told To Equalize Its Schools

Federal Judge Albert V. Bryan of Alexandria yesterday ordered Arlington County to provide equal advantages and facilities for Negro senior high school students.

However, he struck from his decree proposed clauses that would have admitted Negroes to the white Washington-Lee High School.

The Alexandria judge issued the decree upon order of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, which reversed his earlier finding in favor of the Arlington School Board.

Judge Morris A. Soper of the Court of Appeals, called "untenable" Judge Bryan's decision that facilities and courses at the county's Negro and white high schools were substantially equal, though not identical.

The suit was brought against the school board by a number of Negro high school students.

Two clauses, suggested by the students' lawyer, Leon Ransom, were omitted from the judge's decree. They would have forbidden the school board to refuse admission at Washington-Lee to Negro students.

Judge Bryan's decree made no specific recommendations as to how Arlington should go about providing equal facilities.

The county school board is about to accept bids on an addition to the Negro senior high school, estimated to cost about $1,216,000. School Superintendent William A. Early has stated that the Negro high school will offer any course given at Washington-Lee this year, if requested to do so.

School officials have maintained that these steps should substantially satisfy an order such as Bryan's.

$500 Bond Set For 3 in Fight At Restaurant

A fight between three diners and two employes over a meal check in an H st. Chinese restaurant early yesterday resulted in three arrests and hospital treatment of one guest for knife wounds, police reported.

Knocked to the floor in the melee, which police supressed at 2:45 a. m. after it had moved out to the sidewalk, were George Moy, owner of the Joy Inn, 609 H st. nw., and Fong Kip, 45, of 708 6th st. nw., an employe charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

Treated at Casualty Hospital for knife wounds about the face and scalp was John F. McGill, 24, of 2311 N. Florida st., Arlington, one of the three guests who remained when the altercation ensued.

Police said there were five men in the dining party originally. Two had left when a dispute over the check arose.

Charged with simple asasult along with McGill were Leonard H. Brown, jr., 19, of 2205 20th st. N., Arlington, and Donald Dick, 20, of 2716 N. 19th st., Arlington. All three were released under $500 bond each for trial November 22.

Moy, who is secretary of the On Leong Tong Businessmen's Association, was not charged. No papers on the assault charge were issued against Kip. It was said he assisted police.

Armour in the past has been Ambassador to Chile, Argentina and Spain and an assistant Secretary of State.

Armour would succeed Walter J. Donnelly of New Haven, Conn., who has been appointed first civilian high commissioner to Austria.

Man Who Insists He'll Keep Ponies Gets Help

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 8 (U.P.)—Lovers of children and their pets flocked today to the support of Oren Hester who vowed he would leave town before he would get rid of his kids' ponies.

His union bailed Hester out of jail. One caller, identifying himself as a former prisoner, said "the city raises hogs right at the jail."

The 46-year-old aircraft mechanic announced he will fight "to the last ditch" a city ordinance which prohibits keeping livestock within 100 yards of a home.

3 East German Reds Accused Of Being Lax

BERLIN, Sept. 8 (U.P.)—The Moscow-ordered purge of the Communist Party in Germany was intensified today with charges by the German Red chief against three key party members now in the East Zone cabinet.

The British radio at Hamburg reported that Walter Ulbricht, secretary general of the Communist Central Committee, had made a speech accusing the three of "completely failing to fulfill their tasks within the framework of the two-year plan."

The three were identified as Georg Handke, minister of domestic and foreign trade for the East German government; Fritz Selbmann, minister of industry, and Paul Wandel, minister of education.

It was the first time these three had been mentioned in connection with the Communist "housecleaning" in Germany.

Eisler Seen Slipping Into Red Oblivion

BERLIN, Sept. 8 (U.P.)—Gerhart Eisler, who jumped bail last year and fled the United States to become propaganda chief of East Germany, apparently is slipping into Communist oblivion.

There are many signs that the same type of "justice" meted out to other top Communists in Eastern Europe is awaiting Eisler, once labeled the No. 1 Communist agent in the United States.

The purge of the top leadership of the East German Communist party already has touched the office of Eisler, director of the state's information office.

The West Berlin newspaper Die Welt reported today that Russian security police have begun censorship of all matter issued by Eisler's office.

Six top Communists were purged and arrested for espionage last week and four others were demoted. One of those arrested was Eisler's press chief.

Lawyer Hits Va. Justice For Rapists

RICHMOND, Va. Sept. 8 (A.P.)—Counsel for seven Martinsville Negroes condemned to death for rape of a white woman charged today that the pardon of a white man similarly sentenced in 1939 showed the death penalty is reserved for Negro men.

State's Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, in an answer to a show-cause order on why a writ of habeas corpus should not be issued for the seven men, denied the death penalty was reserved by Virginia courts and juries under custom and usage for the Negro race.

Almond said that on August 21, 1939, Dimps Ricker, a white man, was found guilty of rape. A jury fixed punishment at death and the next day the circuit court of Appomattox County pronounced sentence on Ricker, the attorney general said. Almond represented W. Frank Smyth, jr., superintendent of the State prison where the men are imprisoned.

A State prison official said records there show Ricker's death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by Governor James H. Price on September 20, 1939. On August 1, 1946, Ricker was pardoned by the Virginia Board of Pardons and Reprieves and released, the official said.

Judge M. Ray Doubles yesterday set September 30 as a tentative date for a hearing on the show-cause order

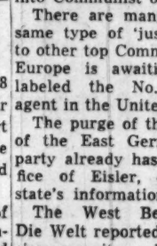
A High Type Music Show Starts Tonight

By Sonia Stein

DR. WILLIAM B. OBER, medical pathologist for the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology who takes the needle to music for WCFM, will start a new series tonight at 9:30. The show is titled, appropriately enough, "A Dissenting Note—Music for Connoisseurs" since Ober is primarily a dissenting type. For the series, which will run to a flexible length of about an hour and a half, Ober plans to use music which is seldom heard. "The point of departure of this program is a dissent from the usual musical fare which is served up to a gullible and unsuspecting public."



Bales

Dr. Ober explains that he "will sedulously eschew performing such works as are repeatedly heard in concert hall and on the air. The principal features will be performances of eighteenth century music, choral, chamber and little known vocal music."

Ober's rebellion is against evenings in the concert hall where "the program is beautifully balanced, Tschaikovsky's Fifth before the intermission and Tschaikovsky's Sixth after intermission."

Tonight Ober's classical disk jockey show will include the Lord Nelson Mass by Haydn, which hasn't been performed since 1908, as far as Ober can check, until this recording, which the Haydn Society of Boston (of which 29-year-old Ober is a founding father) has put out.

Another item promised is the first broadcast of the recording of Charles Ives' Third Symphony which WCFM's own new recording subsidiary has produced as its first effort. Ober will play it September 30 very likely. It was for this symphony that Richard Bales and the National Gallery Orchestra created a high F sharp for the tubular chime. It's written into the music, but can't be had on any tubular chimes the orchestra could find, so Bales took some copper tubing and came up with the required note.

BESIDES the return of the National Gallery concerts tomorrow night at 8 with Thomas Brockman, pianist, as first in the series, WCFM will be bringing a series of "live" chamber music concerts to Washington starting next Thursday at 9:30. The first of this series will be a presentation by the George Steiner String trio.

Apropos of the characters mentioned above, Dr. Ober followed up an article about him in The Washington Post some weeks ago with a box of candy and a note saying "One of these is poisoned."

THE SAME article which discussed Ober's misanthropic views discussed Cody Pfanstiehl who does an intimate "Inside Pfanstiehl" program about matters close to man's heart on Tuesday at 7:45 p. m. on WCFM.

Described as a philanthrope who'd give the shirt off his back, Pfanstiehl came through with a clutch of red roses wrapped in the shirt off his back. Which is conclusive proof that he exists. One reader suspects he does not because she remembered reading a story about a mad scientist named Cody Pfanstiehl who ended his evil days suspended in space in a satellite space ship. Well, in a way that's him. An author friend uses his name for characters and he frequently turns up in Esquire.

He's named Cody for a famous relative by the name of Buffalo Bill Cody, and the Pfanstiehl part of the name he got from his father, the same by no means mad scientist who is responsible for Pfanstiehl phonograph needles.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Bill Gold is on vacation. His column today takes the form of a letter to his managing editor.

Dear Boss:

We hit the road early, headed for the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto. But we'd been warned that Toronto hotels are packed because of the fair, so we stopped in Hamilton, Ont., about an hour short of our destination, and booked rooms at the Royal Connaught. The double room cost us $9 (Canadian) and it's strictly first-class.

As a matter of fact, we even found two books of matches in the room, and we take this to be a mark of de luxe accommodations here. For some reason, matches are expensive in Canada, and are not distributed free to cigarette purchasers. They cost a penny a pack.

From Hamilton to Toronto we switched from the King's Highway to the Queen Elizabeth Way (on the roadmaps and roadside markers it's identified as "ER" rather than by a number) and found it to be a modern superhighway, divided in the middle by a beautifully kept grass plot.

The fair, which we envisioned as a quaint little provincial clambake, turns out to be the biggest I've ever seen. It's half honky tonk, half educational and half industrial—and as far as I'm concerned, boss, anything that's big enough to have three halves is BIG.

For the amusement seeker, there's a vast midway jammed with games, rides, shooting galleries, refreshments, guess-your-weight (or age) stands and pitchmen of every description.

For those of a more serious turn of mind, there are acres of educational exhibits, informative government displays, a zoo, a big livestock competition, an art gallery and a number of scholarly presentations by some of Canada's biggest business houses.

And for the housewife, there are the commercial exhibits sponsored by makers of refrigerators, radios, furniture, cookies, cakes, jams, hams, clothing, autos, and just about everything else that's made or sold in the Dominion.

Best of all, wherever you turn there's a "drawing" in progress, with tens of thousands of dollars in cash and merchandise given away in contests of every description.

A statistician figured out that on the day we attended exhibitors gave away two prizes per minute to the quarter of a million persons who jammed their way through the gates.

In short, boss, I've never seen such a jamboree. On the one hand there's a band concert, on the other there's a sheep judging contest. In between, you can take your choice of yacht races on the lakefront, an old-time fiddlers' competition, the "Hell Divers" who do stunts with automobiles, a softball tournament, vaudeville acts headlined by Danny Kaye, dancing to the music of Guy Lombardo—and even a troupe of Swiss bell-ringers.

Meantime a flight of jet planes is firing rockets at a target anchored just offshore, and a fellow with a high pitch for a new shampoo bellows through his microphone: "Ladies, you're wasting your time and money in beauty parlors."

Believe me, boss, we put in a full day and didn't see a fraction of the show. It's an annual fall event, and Toronto isn't too far from Washington. Next year we'd like to go back and stay a week.

Walter says he's going to spend the next 12 months sharpening up his tick-tack-toe game. The Rojers Majestic firm (they're radio manufacturers) display a machine they call "Bertie the Brain," and defy you to beat Bertie at what they call "a game of noughts and crosses."

The machine dramatizes the development of a new binary adder tube developed by the company recently. You make the first "move" by pushing a button. In less than one ten thousandth of a second, Bertie counters with a move of his own. You ponder a while, then push another button. Before your motion is finished, Bertie has flashed his countermove. And the best you can do is tie him. You can't win a game unless the electric circuits get messed up.

The Burroughs (business machines) people offer a somewhat similar electronic marvel. You think of a number and the machine guesses your number. This one dramatizes a new adding machine with a memory bar and, to my way of thinking, is pretty clever sales promotion.

A teletype manufacturer lets the public tap out messages on several machines which are on display, and the Smith-Corona typewriter people have set out a score of typewriters to amuse folks who like to practice writing: "Now is the time for all good men . . ."

But the National Cash Register Company really hits the jackpot by inviting people in to ring up make-believe transactions on their machines. It looks like everybody loves to hear the tinkle of the good old money music box, and those cash registers ring away from morning to night.

Bill

P. S. Overheard in the crowd in the jammed Food Building at the fair: "You can't miss it; just go right down this aisle until you come to fresh air, and the water fountain is in the courtyard."

U. S. Military Prestige Lowered

By Drew Pearson

Unpublished intelligence reports reaching Washington from various parts of the world tell a depressing story of lowered American military prestige as a result of Korea.

Pearson

Confidential reports from friendly British sources bear this out. The British embassies in France, Belgium and Holland, for instance, report that in case of war with Russia those countries probably would not fight. Our own embassies substantiate this.

Even the published reports tell a story that is bad enough. From Paris the Associated Press reports: "The crisis in Korea has brought the American position in France to a low point . . . There has been a wave of dismay at American reverses . . . It is staggering to hear Frenchmen talk about capitulation (to Russia)."

And in Germany, where most Americans have blithely figured we could raise a German army to support us, comes the opposite not from our best friend, Chancellor Adenauer, who says that Germans need American troops to support them, rather than German troops to support the U. S. A.

"Until now," says the chancellor, "Germany maintained its spirit against the spread of communism by faith in the American armed forces. But events in Korea have had a noticeable effect, and there is a sense of helplessness that the Russians will take over.

"American troops in Germany, therefore, should be increased by three more divisions in three months, with a total of 10 divisions later."

The above is a cross-section of reaction from our friends in western Europe. Intelligence reports from areas less friendly, such as the Arab states and the Orient, are far worse.

Military Errors

Precedent in the War and Navy Departments has been against prying into military mistakes. After previous wars, the files dealing with military blunders have been locked up. A dozen or so high-ranking U. S. generals were "busted" in the European theater during World War II, but only fragmentary facts concerning the boners ever leaked out. And in the Pacific, MacArthur exercised even tighter censorship regarding certain errors, including his own still unexplained error in letting all his planes get destroyed at Clark Field shortly after Pearl Harbor.

In the Korean crisis, however, Congressional sentiment is growing for a forthright examination of our military errors and woeful lack of preparedness. Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas, himself a naval commander in the Pacific, has been tentatively picked as the committee chairman to do the probing, and here are some of the things he will be asked to examine:

1. Lack of Troop Training—MacArthur had the biggest segment of American troops under him in Japan. They were on a war footing, with plenty of time for maneuvers. Yet all reports from the battlefront indicate that his troops were softer, greener, less prepared than troops trained in the U. S. A.

2. Bazookas—It was known at the end of World War II that Russian tanks were powerfully armed. It was also known that our 4-inch bazookas were inadequate. Yet we sent men into battle with these same almost useless bazookas. This was sheer murder. The military had five years to prepare a new type of bazooka, but none were on deck in Japan when the Korean war broke. It is reported that heavy orders placed for the smaller bazooka and not countermanded toward the end of the war is part of the answer. These factories just kept on making useless bazookas.

3. Tanks—During most of World War II United States tanks were inferior to German tanks, while the Russians publicly chided us regarding the lend-lease tanks we sent them. After the war we junked thousands of our own tanks, apparently without making any serious attempt to develop a tank that could meet the Russians. In brief, the Pentagon planners were woefully asleep.

4. Air Force—MacArthur had the largest chunk of United States air power to be found any place in the world when the Korean war started. But for many agonizing days at the start, 70 percent of his planes were kept on the ground. This was not due to bad weather alone, but to the fact that MacArthur feared a Russian air strike at Japan. Many military men disagreed with him on this, pointing out that planes over Korea required only an hour to get back to defend Japan, and that time in the Korean war was priceless.

5. Slow Troop Movements—In the first weeks of the Korean fighting, troops moved from Japan to Korea with tragic slowness. From Japan to Korea is only 120 miles—the distance to Philadelphia from Washington—but at that crucial time when we had more bases in Korea, troops moved in driblets. MacArthur's excuse was that he feared a Russian attack on Japan, though many in Washington argued that Moscow would never risk our atom bomb and a world war by attacking Japan.

6. Officers — The old jungle commanders who brought MacArthur's troops up from the southwest Pacific and who are skilled in the current type of Korean fighting are not with him anymore; and at least one of them, Gen. Robert Eichelberger, hero of Buna, has made it quite clear that he would not care to serve under MacArthur again.

Inquiring Senators feel that the lives of hundreds of heroic GIs and combat officers could have been saved by more planning, more preparedness, and more forthrightness at the top.
